French Premier Explains Necessity for Big Land Force to Defend France

Minister of War Barthou Says Country Ready to Accept Limitations on Conditions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Acting in unison again, spokesmen of the great powers at the arms conference today pledged themselves to reduction of land armaments but according to the varying conditions which they outlined as affecting their assurances of national security.

In a dramatic hour, Aristide Briand, seven times premier of France, outlined the fears of France of an attempt at restoration of Prussianism in the former Central European empires, and Arthur James Balfour, heading the British delegation, rose in his place and in solemn words practically pledged Great Britain to the aid of France in any future threat of the lust of military domination.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Germany, while apparently disarmed, Premier Briand told the armament conference today could with her present machinery raise an army of six million or seven million men.

At least 250,000 Germans were receiving daily military instruction, he added.

In a dramatic speech of an hour, the French premier outlined to the conference "what is being said at the door of France," which he added: "wants peace."

"How can anyone ask France to disarm under such conditions?" he asked.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Aristide Briand, seven times prime minister of France, held the arms conference in a rapt hour today with the world for his audience, while he told of the need of France for a large army.

TWO MORE ARRESTS IN LARCENY CASE

In connection with the alleged theft of $100 from the Lowell Five Cent Savings bank by Theodoras Glanakos, details of which will be found in another column of this paper, the police this afternoon arrested on larceny warrants the woman whom Glanakos represented as his wife and the interpreter taken to the bank by Theodoras to speak for his supposed "wife." The woman gave her name as Manthas Panopoulos, of Adams street, and the interpreter as John Mantas, of Market street. They will be arraigned in district court tomorrow.

DIRECTIONS TO VOTERS

On the ballot prepared for tomorrow's primaries, you will find four distinct lists of candidates with each of which you will have to deal separately by marking a cross opposite the names of the candidates for whom you wish to vote.

First list for mayor, seven candidates. Vote for one only.

Second list, for councilor-at-large, 62 candidates. Vote for not more than six.

Third list, ward councilor, the number of candidates varies with the ward from six to ten. Vote for only one.

Fourth list, candidates for the school board, thirty-nine in all. Vote for nine only.

Thus the limit on voting is:

For mayor .....	1
Councilor-at-large .....	6
Ward Councilor .....	1
School Board .....	9

Total ..... 17

Vote as soon as possible after the noon hour. Time for closing the polls has been extended to 10 p. m.

BIG SALEM FIRE ENDANGERS MANY

SALEM, Nov. 21.—Eight families, comprising about 20 persons, were driven to the street in a cold rain today during a fire which damaged three buildings on Essex street and Hawthorne boulevard.

The fire started in the apartment of Mrs. Mary Englehart in a house on Essex street, spread to a small building adjoining and then to a six-family house on Hawthorne boulevard. All of the occupants of the house got out with safety, but Mrs. Margaret DeWitt, who lived in the Hawthorne boulevard house, was overcome when she went back for some of her belongings. She was found unconscious on the floor by a policeman.

The loss was estimated at $10,000.

TRAFFIC CLUB

The Traffic club of the chamber of commerce will probably hold its next meeting at 7.30 p. m. November 29. Charles A. Appleton, New England for the Judson Preleit Forwarding company, is expected to address the members.

TY COBB FINED
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit American league baseball team and manager of the San Francisco team in the California Winter League, was fined $150 as the result of a altercation with another player during Saturday's game between the San Francisco and Vernon clubs here.

Cobb was fined $50 for using abusive language and $100 for delaying the game.

AMATEUR POLO
The Wanderers defeated the St. Pat's by the score of 2 to 1. It was an overtime game. The goal was scored by Manager Boyle. The Wanderers would like to challenge any 13 to 14-year-old team in the city. If any team desires to play the Wanderers you will be able to meet the manager at the corner of Kinsman and Whipple streets any night after 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Malkin, wife of the legal adviser with the British delegation to the disarmament conference, is a vital, ruddy brown sort—ruddy brown hair, with a fresh wind blown look; pink skin, naturally so; heavy brown silk sweater blouse of marvelous weave; brown skirt, brown stockings, small, soft; black slippers with bronze beading.

She Doesn't Smoke
In her apartment at the Hotel Lafayette—already attractive with water colors and sketches brought from England and flaming beach leaves gathered in Washington parks—is the faintest, most delicate suggestion of lavender.

"I use no other perfume," she smiled, then boyishly sniffed the beechy-lavender air.

"And I don't smoke—now, isn't that unusual?" quite seriously.

"I don't know why—just don't fancy it, must be."

"Your big sunny parks are perfectly delicious! I mean to be out in them—oh, quite a great deal! And do you have clubs? Clubs where women can go and sit about? You know, it's quite necessary in London; we're so far apart that we must have places to gather and chat."

Mrs. Malkin was looking out of the window.

"The sun over here! I shall simply sit and bask in it all day! And oh, yes, do you have infant welfare centers? I assisted with them in England—we need them there, but in your big sunny cities what need would you have of such things?"

Mrs. Malkin was showing me some sketches, some her own work delicately beautiful things. Then suddenly—

"And don't you have any nice little weeklies over here? Why, your newspapers that come every day simply me—they are terrifying when you get them apart!" she laughed. "Never got them together again!"

Loves American Rolls

"Over there I read the papers a little but mostly books from circulating libraries, books of travel, biography and some novels. I mean to join one here. You have them?"

"At our place in Scotland I have a beloved black and white spaniel, Giles—and we go out into the garden, Giles and I, and read for hours! I love gardens."

"Yes, and before you go, I must tell you—I think your American rolls are adorable. I eat almost nothing else!"

CAMPHOR IS SCARCE AND PRICE HIGH

Cinnamomum camphora experts attention! Perhaps you can tell Lowell druggists where the camphor shipped from the far east is going to.

The stocks in this city at the present time are low and the price high. Today Boston wholesalers are asking $1.10 a pound for the stuff that comes from Japan, China, Formosa and eastern Asia. Hamlets. This means a pretty stiff price over the counter.

One New York wholesale druggist is offering small amounts of camphor at $1 a pound, so a Central street apothecary says. That reports that come to Lowell are that the world market is remarkably short of camphor. No one in the big eastern trades can understand why, except that shipments are not coming from Japan and other eastern sections, and the reason is either an extreme shortage in the camphor production districts, or else some great nation is buying up the drug for ammunition purposes.

It is not generally known that camphor, which has various names in other languages such as camphre de Japan, kamfer (German), has been found to offer important elements necessary for the manufacture of powerful war explosives. Nitro-glycerine and one other explosive with various ingredients, contains camphor and there has been a world-wide demand for the old-fashioned drug store article bearing the camphor label for sometime.

JUST BEING HER HUSBAND'S WIFE

By RUTH AGNES ASHING
WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—"All I set out to be is my husband's wife, so put it down 'Mrs. H. W. Malkin!'"

"Do they really say over here, now, like this—Margaret Morris, Malkin?" And then, laughing, "How careless! But I have no other career so I shall situation say they would not be surprised if someone was cornering the vicinity. There was such a shortage camphor market for some nation anxious to use it for the making of explosives. Men of the trade cannot understand when there is no particular great demand for camphor at this time, why the market is no short everywhere.

Particularly strange, in the opinion of the best informed drug men in Lowell, is a fact that there are great forests of these in the eastern countries from which camphor is obtained, and the so-called shortage cannot be laid to any lack of the stuff "in the raw."

In 1905, Japan exported only about 10,000 pounds. Since then, particularly during the war, the demand has been enormous up to within a year or two. The demand for camphor during the last part of the great war was about 18,000,000 pounds each year.

The consumption in the United States alone in one year of war was over 2,000,000 pounds.

Lowell druggists have not forgotten the great demand made upon them, to run out something like the method used in securing maple sugar in Vermont in the early spring. Cups are placed under the trees and the camphor runs and soon forms little balls or cakes, which are easily picked and carried away to the packing houses for shipment abroad.

Natives of eastern countries have obtained millions of dollars by growing camphor trees and taking good care of them. No one is allowed to tap a camphor tree for its juice until it is at least 30 years of age. On trees that are full grown, there is a one per cent yield per tree that is considered excellent.

Camphor taken off the general market would mean very high prices, although there is no shortage in Lowell at the present time. The famous fire-side liniment would be missed if it could not be readily obtained at the nearest grocery or drug store. Camphor is used frequently in treating nasal troubles and bronchial affections, and acts as a soothing lotion for other ills the flesh is heir to.

ABLE ADDRESS BY THOMAS MULLIN

Discusses "Capital Sin of the World" Before League of Catholic Women

Madam Richardson, Noted Singer, Entertains With Operatic Selections

The League of Catholic Women maintained its status as one of the leading women's organizations in the state at its meeting in Associate Hall yesterday afternoon, when it presented one of the most interesting programs ever offered in this city. Madam Richardson, formerly of the Paris grand opera, in operatic selections of rare charm, and Thomas Mullin, Eng., of Boston, in a lecture entitled "The Capital Sin of the World—What Is It?" which he delivered with forceful eloquence, shared the honors. Piano accompaniments for the operatic selections were capably furnished by Charles La Pierre, a pianist of extraordinary ability. The hall was crowded to the doors by an audience of about 1500, whose frequent applause demonstrated keen appreciation. Mrs. John T. Donehue, president of the league, presided in an able manner, and seated with her on the platform was Rev. Joseph A. Curtin, spiritual adviser of the organization.

The first number on the program was assembly singing led by Mrs. Joseph Green, with violin accompaniment by Miss Marie O'Donnell. Next came a selection by the league's mandolin and guitar orchestra, under the direction of Joseph A. Handley. After brief remarks concerning the organization's welfare, Mrs. Donehue introduced Madam Richardson.

The distinguished singer, who is a personal friend of Mrs. Donehue, was for several years prima donna with the grand opera in Paris, and the possessor of a soprano voice of excellent range and exceedingly pleasing tone, chose as her first selection the garden scene from Faust. She said that she had been requested to present this scene exactly as she had in Paris, although the scenic effects were altogether lacking. After a résumé of the scene (which concerns the meeting of Faust—who has made an infamous bargain with Satan, trading his soul for renewed youth)—and the lovely girl by the gift of a casket of jewels, with which she adorns herself for self-admiration), the singer proceeded to give such a realistic interpretation of the role of Marguerite that the audience could visualize the action of the scene when all the accessories to its presentation were at hand. It was a superb bit of acting, which, coupled with Madam Richardson's truly splendid voice, moved the audience to tumultuous applause.

The accompanist, Mr. La Pierre, then gave an artistic rendition of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 12, which received merited appreciation.

Proceeding with her program, Madam Richardson sang Gounod's "Ave Maria," the grand aria, "Salut a Toi" from Wagner's Tannhauser, and Joe Lynn's "Berceuse" or "Lullaby." On the last named selection a violin obligato was skillfully rendered by Miss Marie Brunelle. In response to the audience's importunities Madam Richardson generously added two encore numbers, "Morning," by Oley Speaks, and "The Years of the Spring," by Mrs. H. A. Beach, her first selection in English of the afternoon.

Madam Richardson will give the same program at Carnegie Hall, New York city, next Friday evening.

Mrs. Donehue then introduced as the speaker of the day Thomas Mullin, Eng., of Boston. Mr. Mullin is a graduate of Harvard college, a former teacher in the Boston high school, chairman of the committee on Americanization and unemployment in the city of Boston by appointment of Mayor Peters and a lecturer of wide repute. His address was interspersed throughout with remarks of an extremely humorous nature which were received by the audience with gales of laughter.

Mr. Mullin said that it was a decided embarrassment to him to be introduced as noted speaker; that it was new to him to be so regarded, but, perhaps he should not object to the honor. The audience was due for an anticlimax of disillusionment, however, and his heart almost failed him at the thought. He would agree, never-

Adventures of the Twins

THE ESCAPE

There wasn't a thing to be seen in the empty room of Mr. Nautilus' house when Nancy and Nick slipped in, hoping to find Mr. Hermit Crab. The walls were of finest pearl, as were the floor and ceiling, and the softest, loveliest colors were flashing in every direction as from a beautifully shaded lamp. The twins were so lost in admiration that they did not notice what was happening.

Proceeding with the subject of his lecture, he said that he wanted to tell something of America, as he is Boston born and bred, and expressed his affection for that city in the words of a former archbishop: "I love Boston, I was born here." He decided on the title and subject of his address as a result of experience in encountering the many vices in America. He asked himself "What is the capital vice of America?" Mr. Mullin referred to St. Paul's Epistles to the Corinthians, wherein it is said that love is the fulfilling of the law. He said he almost never finds anyone with abiding love for his neighbor nowadays.

The reason there are not more relief measures is that man does not love his fellowman. While all the literature of the day is filled with the love of man for man and man for woman the people are forgetful of the second greatest commandment of God.

"Thou shall love thy neighbor as thyself." Disregard of this commandment he characterized as the sin of forgetfulness.

Mr. Mullin said we have become accustomed to thinking of America as political earthly. We have been led to think of America as a land bounded on the north, south, east and west and nothing more. America is an idea, and national character is necessary. We are now engaged in seeking peace.

In September we observed the 600th anniversary of the death of Dante, the great poet of the Divine Comedy. The speaker had discussed tragedy and comedy with many great actors, among them the illustrious "Rip Van Winkle," Joseph Jefferson, who had told him that while tragedy was easy, comedy was difficult to understand.

Dante had the same thought as the speaker when he said he wanted one thing—peace. That is what we all seek.

Mr. Mullin saw little hope of future disarmament while the world continues under present conditions. Although we send missionaries to foreign lands for the conversion of the heathen, we make no provision for sending them to convert the hearts of princes. The cause of the great war was that the spirit of disobedience was abroad, as it was in the Garden of Eden. Even in Eden they tried to shift the blame. The two great lies in the Scriptures are still in practical use at the present day. Cain said, "Am I my brother's keeper?" after Abel's murder, and Judas, after he had betrayed his Master, said "Is it I, Lord?" The attempt to avoid responsibility is still characteristic of mankind. He knows this from his experience in Boston and human nature is the same everywhere.

Speaking on justice, Mr. Mullin referred to the amazement of the world at Secretary Hughes' open diplomacy, as exhibited at the inauguration of the disarmament conference. The war in Europe was the result of disregard for the Prince of Peace, shown in injustice to the people. Conditions must change, however, and with their change will come the dawn of peace.

Mr. Mullin dramatically recited the achievements of America in the fight for justice which she has carried on from the beginning and said that we are the hope of the world. He feels that everything will come out right in good time.

There is no fear of woman losing man's respect under present day standards. If a woman is self-respecting she need have no fear. It is carelessness toward little children, who are such perfect imitators, from love of their parents or relatives, that causes him great apprehension, and we should not fail to set them a good example. Since we must make ourselves as little children to see our Master, we must prepare ourselves to this end, and take care that in our pride we are not lacking in worship for women and reverence to posterity, represented in little children.

While he had spoken of irreverence and disobedience of the second greatest commandment, Mr. Mullin said he did not want his audience to think that he felt the future of America was anything but bright. America is his glory and his home. He believes that the women's organizations like the League of Catholic Women do what they can to leaven the minds of America, the perpetuity of our institutions is assured, and no fear need be felt for the future of our country, and its decline and fall.

Mr. Mullin was tendered a splendid ovation at the conclusion of his remarks.

The exercises closed with singing by the assembly of the day's hymn, accompanied by the league orchestra.

Railroads Must Cut Rate

Continued

Mississippi valley to the Pacific coast unreasonably high but which did not carry compulsory orders. The October decision instructed the railroads to make the reduction by Nov. 20, which was not done because the railroads began negotiations with the commission suggesting that a 10 per cent decrease in freight rates on all agricultural products be substituted for the larger decrease on grain products and hay alone.

The commission, however, by the order issued today, disregarded the compromise proposed by the railroads and makes the larger decreases on hay and grain mandatory upon the roads.

The order issued today more specific and definite the hay and grain reductions. The original decision said railroads should reduce the rates on the products concerned by one-half of the increase given in 1920. The commission today ordered hay and grain rates between points in Mountain-Pacific territory not more than 12.5 per cent above the rates in effect before the 1920 increases. Between points in the western group as defined in the decision where 40 per cent increases were allowed in 1920, the commission today ordered them made effective as 20 per cent; between other western group points the commission held rates shall not exceed 17.5 per cent above the old schedules, and between points in the Mountain-Pacific group and points in the western group the increase above the old 1920 schedules shall be held to 15-2-3 per cent.

The effect of the order thus is to make specific the percentages of reduction in the territory concerned. The commission also reiterated its decision requiring the roads to fix rates for coarse grain such as corn at 10 per cent less than the rates of wheat.

MR., MRS. and, MISS VOTERS:
If my past official acts and public character meet with your approval, I earnestly solicit your support at the coming preliminary election.

I want to be a member of the new City Council, because I sincerely feel that I can be of service—that my training both as a business man and as public servant has fitted me to do for the city what the city needs to have done.

Your vote should be given me—I respectfully suggest—because you, too, desire, as I do, GOOD, CLEAN, EFFICIENT government.

With your help and co-operation, I shall be nominated and elected.

THANK YOU,
JOHN W. DALY,
Adv., 16 Andrews St.

Theodoras Glanakos of Marlboro street, pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny before Judge Enright in district court today. The police allege that the accused man by false representation of his wife, Mrs. Photoula Glanakos, succeeded in withdrawing $1000 deposited in her name from the Lowell Five Cent Savings bank Saturday, Nov. 12. Although not represented by counsel, the defendant asked for a continuance, and the court set Nov. 23 as the trial date, bail being fixed at $3000.

It is charged that Glanakos took another woman, whom he presented as his wife, and an interpreter to the bank and after answering several questions was paid the money, according to the story told the police. The woman could not write and marked the required cross in place of her signature, it is stated.

It is believed the wife discovered the deed and immediately notified the police. Inspectors Martin Maher and Philip Dwyer worked on the case and after a thorough investigation apprehended Glanakos and the woman. According to the police, the defendant admits taking the money out of the bank, though he denies having used illegal means.

POLICE READY FOR PRIMARY DAY

Detailed arrangements to handle the thousands of voters at the city primaries tomorrow in an orderly and efficient manner were completed by Supt. of Police Redmond Welch today.

Expecting that tomorrow's political turnout will be without a precedent in this city under the new conditions, the chief has prepared to meet any emergency. There will be ample police protection at each place of voting. Supt. Welch stated today, besides the regular policeman stationed on duty at the polls, superior officers, both in uniform and plain clothes being detailed to make half-hourly visits to each precinct.

The chief does not believe that any serious trouble will arise, but in any event the department will be ready to meet any unforeseen occurrence.

The detailing of regular officers to the polling premises will necessitate a call out of a number of reserve officers.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

Sergt. Winn Agrees With Views of Chicago Member of Flying Squadron

Commenting on an address delivered in Boston yesterday by James H. Woerlendyke of Chicago, member of the Flying Squadron on a ten months' campaign over the country for better enforcement of the 18th amendment, Sergt. Michael H. Winn, head of the local police liquor squad, stated today that the accusations made by the Chicagoan are absolutely true as found by the raiding squad in Lowell.

The Flying Squadron man stated that 80 per cent at least of those who are breaking the prohibition laws are unnaturalized foreigners. "That is very applicable to this city," the sergeant said. "In fact, more than 90 per cent of the liquor law offenders arrested in Lowell are foreigners who have not yet taken out naturalization papers."

Mr. Woerlendyke was roundly applauded at the conclusion of his address yesterday when he said these unnaturalized foreigners who break the prohibition laws ought to be sent back to the country from which they came.

Three Dying From Alcohol Poisoning

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Three boys, two of them 14 and the other 13, were in a hospital today at the point of death from wood alcohol poisoning. John Turiello, the only one who could speak, told detectives that five of them had found a bottle in the street containing something that smelled like whiskey and each took a drink. One of those in the hospital was found unconscious in the street. The other two have not been heard from.

A MESSAGE FROM A BUSINESS MAN

To the Voters of Lowell

After the political thunder and lightning have ceased, and the street orators have died away, what is your honest opinion? Do you think that any of those you have heard, is anywhere near the equal of Sam Scott as a fit and proper man to fill the office of Mayor under the New Charter?

Taxpayers of Lowell: The time has arrived when we should give the Government of our City calm and sober thought. We have been dominated by a class of City Fathers in the past that seemingly work for their own, or their political friends' betterment at the expense of the people who pay the freight. Pull out your tax bills and rent receipts of the past few years and note the difference. We are NOT getting a square deal for the money spent. How much longer do you want this condition to prevail?

You may rest assured that Sam Scott will give you an administration that will reflect credit to himself and bring relief to the rent and taxpayers of Lowell.

Why not try a man for Mayor who has a reputation of DOING THINGS WELL, and who will undoubtedly give us what we have not had for many moons, a straight, common sense, unselfish, business administration of city affairs.

THE REAL MEANING—It is the duty of every parent to send his or her children to high school in order that they may have an equal chance with those of every other city or town, but the high cost of living (high taxation in general) is the main cause of the high cost of living makes it hard or impossible for some to do so.

BIG MEETING FOR IRELAND

Harry Boland, Irish Envoy,
Heard by Boston Meeting
Last Evening

Hon. Frank P. Walsh Predicted Victory From the London Conference

Vast Audience Showed Deep
Interest in Addresses Delivered and Hopeful Outlook

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Harry Boland, envoy of the Irish republic, received a great reception last night in the arena from fully 12,000 persons. He arrived in Boston about 4 p.m. and was escorted to the Hotel Copley-Plaza by a large delegation of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, a company of ex-service men, who constituted themselves a bodyguard, carrying the flags of the United States and Ireland, and led by the Brian Boru War Pipes of Worcester, dressed in the kilts and looking like Scotsmen. They made a great hit when they entered the arena later with Harry Boland and the committee.

Enthusiasm Runs High

The enthusiasm at the arena meeting was something seldom equaled and some of the addresses were of a kind to thrill such an audience. It was evident from some of the addresses that Mr. Boland's visit is preliminary and paving the way for another bond loan. He assured the audience that the entire $6,500,000 subscribed two years ago has been received in Ireland without the loss of a cent in transit. And he felt sure that those bonds would be paid long before England paid her debt to the United States.

It was a wonderful audience. There were in it men and women who have been fighting for Ireland—in this country—for 3 years or more, and some of these men who are now guiding the destiny of Ireland were unknown three or four years ago. But these men and women were just as enthusiastic as the younger men and women and just as proud of what has been accomplished by de Valera and his companions the past few years.

Mr. Boland predicted that by next St. Patrick's Day the British troops would have evacuated Ireland and the republican government will be firmly established among the governments of the world.

Frank P. Walsh insisted that no sane government could afford to renew the war in Ireland in face of the fact that the Irish Republican government has functioned as no government has in Ireland for a century or more—to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

Besides the speaking there was a concert by a military band. "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung by Mrs. Cecilia K. Kelter; several fine old songs were sung by Mrs. Helen C. Galvin, and some Gaelic songs with harp accompaniment were sung by a group of girls, under the direction of Miss Caroline Townsend.

John F. Harrigan, state president of the A.A.R.I.R., opened the meeting and received a great reception—was cheered when he stood up. He said he would not take up any time with a speech, and introduced as permanent chairman, William H. O'Brien.

Harry Boland's Address

Harry Boland received an ovation. He read his address, saying: "We are gathered here tonight at a moment of high political vital importance, not alone for the people of Ireland, but for the people of the world. There are two conferences being held at present—one in London, a peace conference, in which are met the representatives of the British government, engaged in an effort to conclude a treaty of peace and amity between the peoples of the two islands; the other, here in Washington, where the representatives of the great powers of the world are gathered to discuss the possibilities of the limitation of armaments."

Future historians will be in a better position to judge who influenced the action of President Harding in calling this conference had on the British government in ending the reign of terror in Ireland and inviting the representatives of the Irish nation to discuss peace.

I am myself convinced that the decision of the American government to summon the conference to Washington is in large measure responsible for the present happy position in Ireland. Ireland is vitally interested in the negotiations not alone in London, but in Washington.

This question of naval supremacy and the freedom of the seas affects Ireland and her future to a much greater extent than it can affect any other of the smaller nations of the world. Ireland has, the last outpost of Europe, against the vast flood of the Atlantic ocean. Unlike all other islands, it is circled round with mountains, whose precipitous cliffs, rising close above the water, stand as bulwarks thrown up against the innumerable sea.

"With these great natural bulwarks, and a sufficient number of submarines and air craft for her protection against aggression, the Irish people would be saved the task of maintaining, necessarily, to keep up a huge fleet, and a better understanding in the world, a free and independent Ireland, her natural harbors swelled with the waves of the Atlantic, with her outlook over the western ocean, would be the surest safeguard for the peace of the world and the freedom of the seas."

Rev. Timothy J. O'Connor

Rev. Timothy J. O'Connor said: "Ireland never acknowledged that might of empire had crushed her spirit or her right to liberty. She has always had hope—hope that she would

City of Lowell

Notice is hereby given as required by section 21, chapter 645 of the acts of 1911, the City Charter that the following order has been proposed in Municipal Court to the effect that the city borrow the principal sum of thirty-two thousand dollars ($32,000) and appropriating the same for acquiring a plot of land for a public playground under the provisions of chapter 45 or the General Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, containing 123,635 sq. ft. or more or less, to be bounded on the north by land of Donald Brooks, land of the Proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river, on the east by land of said Proprietors and on the south by land of Thomas H. Elliott, George Namay, W. C. Doherdy and Middlesex street, and on the west by Saunders street.

attain her liberty; a hope which of late has grown most sanguine.

Hon. F. P. Walsh

Hon. F. P. Walsh paid a high tribute to President de Valera. He then broached the subject of doing more in a financial way for Ireland. The Irish government is denied entrance to Wall Street to get a loan in the usual way, he said, but he was sure, the Irish people in America would see to it that the Irish republic does not want for funds with which to begin and carry on its work. He felt sanguine over the outcome of the present conference in London.

Capt. Joseph J. Heffernan, an ex-service man of the American army, urged his fellows to join the Paul Reverie Council, as they were no longer gaited with the shroud of silence. "With us, your voice will be heard," he said. (Great cheering.)

HOT WARD CONTESTS

Each Ward Has Eight of Its Own for Councilor—The Candidates

In the wards, the councilor fight is being hotly contested. Seats have been picked in practically every ward. As a rule, the experienced campaigners are said to have the lead, but there are so many unknown quantities involved that calculations are liable to be upset in many cases. The younger candidates, in some instances at least, are almost certain to show surprising

"Here's hoping that my experience will be of benefit to others," said Harry A. Thompson, well known carpenter, 19 Main street, Howard. R. L. is he gave out the following statement regarding Tanlac: "What I do for Tanlac can hardly be described in dollars and cents. For five years I suffered from lumbago every winter, from the time the cool weather set in until the next summer. My back hurt like toothache, and I could hardly get up out of my chair. At times I hurt so bad I just had to give up my work. I had to leave many nights I couldn't sleep and could hardly turn over in bed. During these attacks I couldn't even stoop over to save a board, and for months at a time was unable to earn a dollar. Nothing ever gave more than temporary relief, and this fall as the cool weather set in and my troubles got a grip on me, I was almost desperate and had but very little hope of ever being any better."

"However, I decided to try Tanlac. I also took the Tanlac rheumatic treatment, and while on my first bottle I noticed an improvement. I finished my third bottle of Tanlac now, and my back is in such good condition I can stand on my feet, and still feel good when night comes. My friends say I can't talk anything but Tanlac, and I feel that I can't praise it enough for the good it has done me."

Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable. Pills are sold in Lowell by the Drug store, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; by Wright Drug Co., Billerica, Mass.; A. D. Falls, Chelmsford, Mass.; Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggists in every town.—Adv.

STALE BLOOD*AFFECTS FEELINGS*Pepto-Mangan Makes Red Blood, Restores Healthy Glow

It is gradually, very gradually, that the effects of weakened blood become apparent. Generally there is a feeling of drowsiness. It is like a harmless, lazy heaviness, and the complexion becomes muddy.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the very first thing a woman should think of taking for a stale-looking complexion. It drives out the poisons that ruin complexions.

But it is not only the effect that Gude's Pepto-Mangan has upon the complexion that makes it so valuable. Not only does it cause an improvement in feelings, a return to the usual style of enthusiasm, a sensation of warmth and glow, an appetite that eagerly awaits eating time.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan makes new blood. It can't be built, no tablet from both nation the same medicinal value. The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on every package.—Adv.

FOR EXCESSIVE URIC ACID TRY THE WILLIAMS TREATMENT*85 Cent Bottle (32 Doses) FREE

Just because you start the day worried and tired, stiff legs and arms and muscles, an aching head, burning and bearing down pain in the back—worse out before the day begins—do not think you have to stay in that condition.

Be strong, well, with no stiff joints, aches, rheumatic pains, aching back or kidney trouble caused by body made acids.

If you suffer from bladder weakness, with burning, scalding pains, or if you are in and out of bed half a dozen times a night, you will appreciate the rest, comfort and strength this treatment will give you.

To prove The Williams Treatment conquers kidney and bladder diseases, rheumatism and all other ailments when due to excessive uric acid, no matter how chronic or stubborn, if you have not tried it, write to The Dr. D. A. Williams Company, Dept. 205, 100 Franklin, Fall River, Mass. Send at once, and you will receive by parcel post a regular 85c bottle, with out charge and without incurring any obligation. strength from a variety of causes.

In ward 1, many of the old-timers predict that Otto W. Butler and Frank K. Stearns will have a comfortable margin when the returns are in. Frank J. Hulbin, however, is conducting an active campaign, and the same applies to John A. MacKenzie. Both of these men claim that their supporters will land them on top. Francis H. Goward and Alexander Rountree both assert that they are very much in the running, and John J. Connors, the first man in the city to take out papers after the charter election, may prove a surprise.

In ward 2 Eugene A. Fitzgerald has a big advantage owing to the fact that he resides in precinct 3 where nearly half of the ward voters are registered and which generally decides the outcome of the ward's vote. John J. Keefe and Daniel F. Coakley are conducting an intensive street and house to house canvass which should bring results. John J. Queenan has the advantage of much previous experience, and is confident of nomination. Joseph H. Bosca has covered the ward well with circulars, evidently believing in that form of campaigning. George Kavouras will probably have to rely mainly on the Greek vote for his support, although he asserts that he has many promises from other quarters.

In ward 3 nobody seems to know who will land the coveted position. Max Goldman lays claim to considerable popularity in the ward and stresses his qualifications for the nomination. Frank E. MacLean has conducted a very quiet campaign, and it is asserted that he is one of the strong men on the list. Donald M. Cameron is popular and many think he will poll a heavy vote. Louis J. Lord is well known to everybody and his friends think he will be a certainty. Joseph Beauparlant is very strong with the younger element in his vicinity, and bases his confidence of success to some extent on his claim that he sponsored the Washington park movement, although Mr. Lord also claims to have been behind this move. Elvyn Dearth is another who has chosen the quiet method of campaigning, and his friends predict his nomination.

In ward 4 there is a contest between the younger men, led by Fred A. Sandler, William P. McLaughlin and William T. Duggan against John J. O'Connell and George B. Ronche, two former members of the old city council. Thomas J. A. Dowd, a business man, in that ward, is also making an active canvass. Much interest is taken in the canvass being made by the young men, and there is wide speculation as to whether they or the older men will win the nomination.

In ward 5 there are ten lively candidates contesting for the two places on the primary ballot. Something of a sensation has resulted from an anonymous letter sent to election commission protesting against allowing James J. Angelo, the father of Paul J. Angelo, one of the ward candidates, to serve as an election officer at the primaries. The counting of the ballots is a joint affair in every precinct, and no one election officer can tamper with the figures without the knowledge of the others. Paul Angelo is a law student, well known in the ward, but several of the other candidates are equally well known, and all of them are making a very active canvass for the coveted nominations.

The contest in ward 6 has shown some enthusiasm during the last few days, with Joseph A. N. Chretien reported the leader. Pierre A. Brousseau, said to be very strong in West Centralville, Arthur St. Hilaire, widely supported by the members of the various organizations to which he belongs, as well as many of the other voters of the district. Robert J. Laird, William N. Fadden and Joseph Roussel are each making an active canvass and receiving encouragement wherever they go.

In ward 7 Cornelius F. Cronin, the well known auctioneer, heads the list on the ballot and is reported to be very confident of success. David B. Kinghorn is employed in the governor's office in Boston and has not given much time to the canvass, but he is widely known in the ward and is likely to receive liberal support.

Thomas Chadwick and Arthur Genest were in the city government under the old charter and both are confident of ranking high in the contest when the votes are counted. George T. Hobden, John F. Regan and John J. Bean are making an active canvass throughout the ward.

In ward 8, there are eight candidates seeking nominations, and among them several well known citizens who would receive more than average support if they had run at large. Such a candidate is William N. Goodell, former president of the chamber of commerce and now paymaster of the Locks and Canals Co. Edward F. Woodward, son of Charles N. manager of Bright, Sears Co., of which the candidate is cashier, is making an active canvass throughout the ward, as is Edward J. McVey, a well known young lawyer, and Arthur B. Chadwick, an accountant. Fred Harrison is well known in republican politics, and his friends expect that he will receive support from the old-time political workers of the ward.

Sam Dean, Orrin B. Ranlett, 24, and William T. Carr are also active in the campaign.

In ward 9, Charles H. Hobson, the well known business man, is a candidate, but he hasn't asked anybody for a vote, relying upon his reputation in business circles to bring him all the support he needs for nomination. He is the leading member of the firm of Hobson & Lawler. Peter E. McMenamin is employed at the Boston & Maine railroad freight office as clerk, and has had long experience in transportation matters. He is not giving much time to his canvass, but he is widely known in the ward and his friends predict that he will get big vote.

Graham R. Whidden, Thomas McFadden, George A. Tyrrell and John E. Tay are all favorably known in the district, and each has a following on which he can rely for support at the primaries.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Attention is called to the three performances, complete in every detail, to be given in the B. F. Keith theatre on Thanksgiving Day. Without doubt, there will be throngs anxious to view the present week's big show, and to provide for all Manager Ben Pickett has arranged to give the three shows—the first starting at 2 o'clock, and the second will begin at 6 p.m., and the third at 10 p.m.

One of the biggest attractions provided for the week is in the persons of Florence Ames and Adelaide Winthrop who will give their wonderfully fascinating thumb nail revue, "Alice in Blunderland." Ames and Winthrop are listed as eccentric players, and there is nothing like it in the country at all.

There will be a short since been made popular, there will be other specialties that will help make the offering wonderfully entertaining. The stage settings and accessories will be attuned to with the same care to detail that has characterized former productions. Patrons are advised to order their tickets well in advance, and mail for Thanksgiving Day will start at 15 cents, after the usual hour of 2:15. Tel. 251. If you are a regular patron you should place your name on the subscription list. It costs no more and gives better satisfaction to all concerned.

THE SHAUN OFARRELL

At the Opera House last evening a good sized audience enjoyed a varied entertainment comprising Irish music, moving pictures of recent events in Ireland and a review of the battles of 1916 showing the terrible cost of that terrible war. There were many big vaudeville performers that when Hitchcock put on his first "Itchy Koo" musical comedy, they were chosen to give a position next to the star. It isn't of much value to vaudeville stars to have a spot, however. Ames and Winthrop are pre-eminently purveyors of the two-a-day kind of entertainment. There they are very much at home, and audiences will not wonder, after seeing them, why they are the big act.

Campaign in Lowell for

Massachusetts League of

Women Voters

An extensive campaign will be opened in Lowell and surrounding towns this week for the organization of local branches of the Massachusetts League for Women Voters. In charge of the Lowell work is Miss Cornelia W. Morton, organizer, whose headquarters are at 10 Arlington street, Boston.

The entertainment was given by

Shaun O'Farrell and company and John

O'Farrell, the famous Irishman, sang several Irish songs that won great applause and then in dialogues with members of the company, he gave side-splitting exhibitions of Irish wit and humor. He has an array of original Irish jokes that produced much laughter. Miss Catherine

McGinnis, the daughter of

Elvyn Dearth, sang in Gaelic and then gave the same in English. Her rendition of "The Last Rose of Summer" was particularly good. Mr. O'Farrell in his "Molly Branigan" and "The Girl from Clare" was vociferous applause and was recalled again and again.

One section of the motion picture was on the recent events in Ireland, including the burning of Cork,

the activities of the Black and Tan,

the Irish Republican army, the Irish leaders in action and other events that are of the greatest interest at the present time.

The concert features of the program are well selected and rendered with no effect. The pictures were also good and the entertainment as a whole was highly enjoyed. Manager Schauks announced that owing to the fact that the concert was not extensively advertised and that there were many people in the audience who did not know the name of the company, would give a return engagement next Sunday afternoons and evening. He felt that the excellence of the program would be duly appreciated.

THE STRAND

"God's Country and the Law," a James Oliver Curwood production, with the story having the North woods as a locale, will feature the program for the first three days at the Strand. Shirley Maclaine, the talented young leading lady of the Players will be seen in the role of "Mary," and Kalman will be seen in the role of "John." Curwood, while the other members of the company will be assigned to parts that will afford them exceptional opportunity to reflect their versatility. Besides the regular musical numbers, all of which have long been well received and rendered with

NOW FOR THE VERDICT

For all practical purposes the campaign or fight for votes is over and now comes the balloting and the verdict of the people.

There can be no doubt that the campaign impressed the citizens in general with all the main features of electioneering as never before. Even under the old charter, which called for nine aldermen, twenty-seven councilmen and a school board of nine members, there was not nearly so much excitement and general confusion as to what should be done or whom should be supported.

Even now, as the work of the campaign closes, we venture to say that a vast number of our citizens are perfectly bewildered as to what they should do in regard to the candidates who have been appealing to them for the past two weeks.

On the mayoralty contest it is not so very difficult to arrive at a decision at least for those who are personally acquainted with the candidates and know their character and capabilities. But on dealing with candidates at large for the council and school board, the matter is entirely different. There are sixty-two candidates seeking the office of councillor at large, and in looking over the list, it is only reasonable to suppose that most voters will cast their ballots for the candidates with whom they are acquainted in preference to those of whom they know nothing except by common report. The citizens who vote for candidates on the strength of reputation alone are very few.

Thus, the superfluity of candidates has its disadvantages, and this will doubtless appear in the results of the primaries. It is but another proof of the necessity of some nominating body such as a Civic League, to assist the voters in making the best possible selection. No such body has come to the aid of the voters and for this reason, nobody may feel surprised if the selections made at the primaries be disappointing.

In reference to the ward contests, the case is very much different. The voters in the wards are personally acquainted with the candidates who seek the nominations, or if they are not, they can easily find out all they want to know of them. As a result, we may expect a wiser selection from these contests than from those at large. It is very generally expected that the wards will select their best representatives, whereas the electorate will be unable to center upon the most desirable candidates for councillor-at-large, and as a consequence, many of the best candidates in the running are likely to be defeated.

In view of the general situation, therefore, it is the imperative duty of every voter to put aside the unfit and undesirable candidates, and to select from the entire list those who are most likely to give the most efficient service to the city. This cannot be done if any large proportion of the voters follow the rule of voting only for those who have solicited their support. Some of the best candidates for the council and school board have not asked anybody to vote for them, yet that is not a reason why they should not be dealt with purely on their merits.

It should be remembered that the result of the primaries will reflect the intelligence of the electorate in selecting the officials who are to serve them in the city government for the next two years. The Sun has steadily defended the electorate against the charge that they do not want good government; and we hope that the result of the primaries will bear out our contention. We realize the difficulties of the present situation, owing to the bewildering number of candidates; but those who would rise to the importance of the occasion and serve the city's best interests must eliminate the unfit, after which there will remain a sufficient number of capable candidates from whom to select the required number of councilors and members of the school board.

The verdict of the citizens is next in order.

LIMITATIONS OF ARMS PARLEY

Already it is becoming apparent that the arms conference in Washington cannot go very far in the direction of abolishing the more dreadful instrumentalities of war, such, for example, as the submarine, poisonous gases and aerial bombing, unless such changes should be universally adopted. The United States, England and Japan can definitely arrange to stop building dreadnaughts, because they are the only powers using them. But if they should decide against the use of large submarines, poison gas and bombing-planes, that would not prevent other powers, such as Germany and Russia, from using these weapons of warfare, with the most destructive effects. Hence, it appears that already there is a tendency to have the arms conference merge into an international body, to include all powers, which would come down to the idea and plan of the League of Nations already in existence, but, unfortunately, not carrying out the main functions for which it was organized.

The League of Nations, without the thirty capital ships to convince the United States, can never accomplish its own earnestness in the movement to secure an international alliance that league does not day against competitive naval armaments.

Education, like water, does not rise above its own level. Is not this a good reason why no uneducated persons should be sent to the school board?

Tomorrow and the day after, the people of this city will have learned a great lesson in civics, but ultimately, it seems, they will arrive at a definite plan by which to end this menace to civilization that holds the great powers under the make most sound.

SEEN AND HEARD

Men who run on a bluff often fall over.

Explaining the Climax

"Do tell me something about the play," she said to the young man. "They say the climax was superb."

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good," said Jerry. "Can't you describe it to me?" "Well, the hero was a gambler, stealthily on the stage and held a dagger in hand, behind a clump of ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of purple flowers, and as soon as she perceived him, she fell upon him, stabbed him and sank, half

A BETTER OUTLOOK

Mercantile publications all report improved business conditions in many quarters. The marked improvement in the textile industry, particularly in the woolen and worsted branches, is refreshing. Not a few mills in New England have started night runs, yet along comes the pessimist and begins to shout "It is not permanent." But that is it, business is decidedly better, pay envelopes are heavier and mill towns and cities are showing the effect in greater spending, reducing bills due the merchants and landlords, and on any pleasant Saturday afternoon there is evidence of sane prosperity and more happiness.

The thing to do is to silence the croaker. Spend normally and the present revival in business will not only be permanent, but there will be growing demands and a call for more men to turn out goods and things will boom. It has happened before after a "hard times" period; it will happen again.

"If we do not hang together we shall assuredly all hang separately," said John Hancock. He voiced a sentiment that has been the foundation of the progress and prosperity of the United States. Old familiar words—unity and co-operation—but they are forces that nation or a business organization must depend upon if there is to be a realization of mutual interdependence and a real pull-together spirit.

TO THE VOTERS

Let every registered voter go to the polls tomorrow as soon after the noon hour as possible and vote for:

1 candidate for mayor.

5 for councillor-at-large.

1 for ward-councillor.

9 for the school board.

Total 17

Every voter has a right to vote for the number of candidates here stated. To vote for more would spoil the ballot; but the ballot will not be affected by voting for a less number. For example, if any ballot shows a cross marked opposite the names of but three candidates for councillor-at-large, the votes will be credited to the candidates indicated.

Some people think the women will have difficulty in marking their ballots; but we anticipate no such trouble. We predict that the women will spoil fewer ballots than the men. Care is necessary to avoid mistakes, which go to swell the number of blank ballots for each office.

The question of how to vote is easily compared to that of deciding for whom to vote.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

I am told that far better relations exist in many of the large textile mills than between the overseers and their employees than was the case some years ago. Here is a letter received by a Lawrence mill overseer from a woman who for ten years had been employed in his department. It was printed, without the name, in one of the little monthly magazines issued by the workers employed in the American wagon mills:

"I want to tell you that this will be my last week in the mill. I want to thank you very much for being so kind to me and for giving me such a good job. You have seemed as good to me as though you were my father, and I am sorry I have to leave. I do not know how long I shall be absent, but if I live I will certainly come back to work for you."

Lowell friends of Mayor Bernard J. Golden of Woburn will be gratified to learn that he has been nominated for a fourth term by the democrats of that city, outstanding his competitor quite handily. Mayor Golden's friends allow that he will prove a strong contender for the place again. The mayor's wife was formerly Miss Katherine Quinn of Lowell, hence the interest that attaches to the mayor's renomination.

"Get out and keep warm by chopping your own wood—also save money" announces a large sign in a Centralville store that is selling axes, saws and sawhorses. This appears to be good advice, only I notice that Chelmsford wood dealers and some in Carlisle and Dracut are advertising wood by the cord for $2—regular winter prices and that doesn't mean delivered, either. In every case, they used to be that the farmers had to pay exorbitant wages to woodchoppers, but farm wages are considerably lower now.

A friend of the Man About Town interested in Norwich university doings and who read the article in the Sun the other day about a valuable document being presented to the old college recently, tells me that the William G. Brooks mentioned as being attentive in his department and "his general conduct that of a gentleman and a soldier" was none other than the father of Phillips Brooks, Bishop of Massachusetts. He was distinguished at Norwich for his scholarship and wrote an interesting account of the trip which was made by the Corps of Cadets from Norwich to Manchester, accompanying the article with the maps of the country traversed. In 1876 he presented a collection of documents to the Vermont State Historical society.

The local offices of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company have no mezzanine floors, no marble fountains and no Morris chairs or footstools. But there is an old wall of plastering on one side of the office as you enter on the right, that is worth looking at when you have time to spare. The walls have long since lost their green and turquoise trimmings, but someone with a pair of scissors and a pot of glue is trying to cover the white spots and raise the eye. Pictures from newspapers are pasted here, with a picture of a pretty dame or two. There is poetry, proverbs and funny sayings. It is a collection

Many persons have an erroneous impression that minors under 16 years of age and over 11 are not allowed to work in mercantile or business establishments, but such is not the case. The law provides that they may do so, provided they have certain educational qualifications and certificates to that effect from the school department. The hours which they may work are also limited. Girls under 21 and boys under 18 are permitted to work only between the hours of five in the morning and ten at night in mercantile establishments and not after 6 o'clock at night in textile manufacturing plants. Girls may be employed as operators in regular telephone exchanges later, but not after eleven at night. In the case of those over 14 and under 16, they may not be employed for more than six days a week or more than 18 hours a week.

The bible continues to be published in greater volume than ever before, according to reports received by the Massachusetts bible society. The work of the society shows that 180,000 bibles were distributed this year. Of this number, 25,577 were gifts to public institutions and individuals.

The bibles distributed were printed in 13 languages. One of the features of the work of distribution this year was the sending of 1409 new testaments to Camp Devens, at the request of Chaplain G. J. Slosser, of the 10th Regiment Infantry, M.N.G., for the 15 days' tour of duty. The chaplain wrote the bible society that the militiamen were eager to have a khaki testament in their blouse pockets.

The visit to Lowell of several members of the so-called "gypsy" family and their preparations to stay here for the winter, has aroused curiosity among many local citizens who are anxious to know where they came from. Gypsies are not a single race, they seem to be many different races, people in "gypsylom" who often claim to be descended from old original "Stanley tribe," but who sometimes are not what they claim to be. Colored costumes, bright-hued gowns and scarfs and gay hair-dressings do not always mean that the women came originally from the wandering tribes of Egypt and the Far East. Gypsies are generally supposed to be of Egyptian descent. They appeared in

STATE SPENDS VAST SUM ON HIGHWAYS

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Nearly $8,000,000 has been expended by the commonwealth this year on state highways, a figure which has never before been approached in this state.

Some idea of the tremendous amount of work done may be gained from the fact that the state has built 230 miles of entirely new road, or has entirely reconstructed old roads; it has maintained 1,155 miles of state highways and in co-operation with cities and towns has assisted in the maintenance of 919 miles of local highway. This great showing has been due largely to a most remarkable combination of favorable circumstances. In the first place, weather conditions have been ideal practically for the entire period from July 1 to the present; there have been large numbers of men anxious for work; great quantities of road building materials have been obtainable, all at prices far below those demanded during the past few years; and there have been a lot of contractors "hungry" for road building contracts in order to permit their organizations to be kept intact during the period of business depression.

All these factors have proven beneficial in many ways. More roads have been built, and at lower cost, and it is the expectation of officials of the department of public works that experience will show them to be better roads, because of the increased efficiency of labor. Not only has it been possible at all times to obtain all the men necessary for a particular job, but the fact that there was always a man waiting for a job had the effect of making the workers more careful in performing the work allotted to them.

From the standpoint of cost, changes which have been operative this year have also been most marked. Roads which cost $4,000 per mile last year have been put in during the past few months at $2,500 to $30,000 per mile. In its road building program, the state has received substantial aid from the federal government under the federal aid law, passed in 1915 for the encouragement of the good road movement throughout the country. This law provides that the federal government will pay one-half of the cost, but not exceeding $20,000 per mile, of each new highway built by a state, and the work already done this year, together with that planned for next year, will entitle the commonwealth to collect about $4,000,000 from Uncle Sam. There is but one string to the proposition, and that is that the state, in order to obtain the federal money, must agree to maintain the newly constructed roads for all time.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The stock market continued its uncertain course at the opening of today's session. Speculative activity indicated further restraint as a result of latest developments at the armament conference. Favorites of the oil, equipment and utility types, especially Mexican Petroleum, General Electric, Baldwin Locomotive and American Telephone were firm to strong, but changes among leading rails and steels were mostly at recessions from last week's final quotations. Preliminary foreign exchange rates, including German marks, were comparatively steady.

Bears made a concerted attack against oils, equipments, shipping and railroads in the last hour as call money rose to 53 per cent. Railroads occurred in the final dealings, causing an irregular close. Liberty bonds showed mixed changes, and the general bond list was hesitant.

LOWELL ROTARIANS GOING TO MELROSE

Lowell Rotarians are planning to go to Melrose tonight to attend a reception and entertainment to be given by the Melrose Rotary club, one of the liveliest organizations of its kind in New England. At least 25 Rotarians of the local club will take along their wives, the party traveling in automobiles, leaving the hall of the Boys' Club on Dutton street between 5 and 5:30 o'clock.

The Melrose club is one of the biggest in the state, and the members active and widely known in business circles. They have been trying to get the Lowell club down that way for some time, but not until last week were plans started for the trip.

CATHOLIC NEWS

A three days' retreat for members of St. Patrick's Holy Name society, beginning on Thanksgiving Day and ending on next Sunday, was announced at St. Patrick's church yesterday. The retreat will be conducted by the Rev. Edward J. Bonaventure, C. P., a missionary priest who is known throughout the country. A diligent campaign for new members has been conducted recently in the parish and its close is marked by this retreat. It is expected that 100 members will be added by the opening of the retreat, about 500 have enrolled at the present time.

The annual Thanksgiving mass for the Holy Name society will be celebrated early morning, which members of the society are expected to attend. On Sunday morning they will have communion in a body, and the concluding exercises, in the form of a reception to new members, will be held Sunday afternoon.

SALVATION ARMY

THANKSGIVING DINNER

The Salvation Army Thanksgiving dinner will take place in Old Fellow's hall on Middlesex street, instead of in the Salvation Army building, as was at first stated. This change in plans is made necessary by the great number of children to feed than was at first expected and the fact that the Salvation Army building is not large enough to accommodate the large number.

The dinner will in all probability consist of chicken instead of turkey, as the price of turkey is very high and the contributions to the Salvation Army kettles not large enough to warrant a turkey dinner.

MISS SLATTERY SPEAKS

Malden Woman Discusses "The World and You" Before 2000 Lowell Girls

Miss Margaret Slattery of Malden electrified upwards of 2,000 girls and ladies of Lowell in the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon speaking on her recent trip around the world. Her subject was "The World and You."

She first told of her experience in China, Japan and India, where she was considered almost a super woman from the fact that her hair was white.

Trips through mountain passes on the backs of coolies, and portages across the swollen Yang-Tze river added to the excitement of her trip. She said the happiest day she spent was in Ceylon from where she had a ride of 150 miles in the jungle. The most perfect English was spoken in the schools there. "No where did I hear the word 'ain't' used," she said.

She touched upon Russia with little children dropping dead each hour and said: "It is a hurt world, it is a wounded world, it is trying to find its way and it asks all of you to help. It wants your money, every cent you can give and it wants your prayers every night that Washington may be given to give it the greatest chance for centuries."

The address was under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Brandt, president of the association, presided. Miss Ellin L. Gale gave a short organ recital before the opening of the meeting. Harry Dioppe directed the congregational singing and Andrew McCarthy sang, "Open the Gates of the Temple." The girl scouts marched to a reserved section carrying the Stars and Stripes and the Scout banner.

ROTARIANS TO HEAR WARDEN SHATTUCK

Members of the Lowell Rotary club will enter the Warden E. Shattuck, warden of the Charlestown state prison, at tomorrow's weekly meeting and dinner at the Boys' Club on Dutton street. The club has been trying to secure Mr. Shattuck to come to Lowell for some time past, and word came late last week that he had decided to accept the Rotarians' invitation. A large number of Rotarians are expected at tomorrow's meeting. The board of directors will meet after the noon exercises.

"PERFECT PACKAGE" CAMPAIGN SUCCESS

The third week of the "Perfect Package" campaign in Lowell shows a continued improvement in the manner of sending shipments of goods from Lowell to distant points. Charles A. Langley, local agent for the American Can company, announced today that of the 2500 shipments from Lowell outward bound last week, only seven packages were held up for better wrapping.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

The county commissioners held their regular monthly meeting at the court house in Gorham street this morning, but no business was transacted. During the recess, however, the commissioners, who were all present, were visited by Messrs. Belleville, Day and Wrigley of the board of selectmen of Dracut, who conferred with them relative to the program for road work in the town next year. The conference was held for the purpose of determining about how much money the town will appropriate at its next annual meeting for road work.

William H. Bigby, candidate for school committee, was drawn for the superior court jury at city hall today.

The most optimistic estimate yet heard as to when the complete returns will be in, places the time at 5 a. m.

VIOLATORS OF AUTO LAWS FINED

Charged with violating the automobile laws, Ferdinand Pichot of Lowell, was fined $50 and Ernest O. Gibbons, of Cambridge, $25 by Judge Enright in the district court today. The former pleaded guilty, both paid. The court alleged that Pichot on the afternoon of Oct. 24 collided with another machine at the corner of Warren and Central streets. In passing sentence, the court remarked that due to a recent decision reached at a meeting of judges it was agreed to impose fines where no personal injury or property damage had been caused, or where the offense was the first one.

Gibbons was arrested Saturday afternoon after he had made a rapid fire dash across Pawtucket bridge towards the boulevard, according to the testimony given by Motorcycle Officer Hamilton, the arresting policeman. The defendant also forgot to use his horn, the officer told the court, and rounded the corner at a terrific rate of speed causing a number of pedestrians to make wild dashes for safety. Officer Hamilton stated that Gibbons, when arrested, told him he had been drinking, but the defendant denied this on the stand.

Non-Support Case

"This man wants the public to support him and his children," Judge Enright remarked after testimony had been given in the case of George Elias, charged with non-support of a minor child. He was given three months to the house of correction, suspended two weeks.

A 19-year-old girl was arraigned on a larceny charge and given a continuance to November 28. It is alleged she stole a pocketbook valued at $1.50, the property of another girl. There were eleven arrests for drunkenness over the week-end. The majority of them were released by the probation officer, being first offenders.

Drunkard Offenders

Archie Tessler was given three months to the house of correction for drunkenness after the police informed the court the defendant had been a continuous source of trouble.

Deputy Downey also informed the justices that George F. Maguire was in court for drunkenness for his 38th time. The court asked the defendant whether he preferred going to the house of correction or the state farm. He voted his preference for the house of correction and the court concurred and pronounced a two months' term.

Adam Krowski drew a five months' suspended sentence to the house of correction when police testimony showed he had staged a rampage in his home Saturday night, breaking almost every piece of furniture in the rooms. He was charged with drunkenness, the arrest following a complaint from his wife.

ELECTION NOTES

The candidates for mayor who have been holding forth from the stump are scheduled to speak at many places tonight, including all the popular downtown gathering places. They will be accompanied by a number of other candidates for the minor offices.

Cornelius Desmond, Jr., and John J. McPadden, candidates for councilor-at-large, surprised the crowds Saturday night by their eloquent and well constructed address. David B. Kinghorn, candidate for councilor in ward 7, also made an excellent impression wherever he appeared.

William H. Bigby, candidate for school committee, was drawn for the superior court jury at city hall today.

The most optimistic estimate yet heard as to when the complete returns will be in, places the time at 5 a. m.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS AT OPERA HOUSE

In the play, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," at the Opera House this week several high school students are numbered among the cast. The students form part of the chorus and appear in the singing numbers. In addition to appearing in these scenes, some of the amateur actors will perform as reporters in a few of the scenes. The students to appear in the play at the Opera House this week are Theresa Mack, Margaret Gallagher, Gertrude Martin, Florence Baldwin, Edward Martin, Louis Rheault and Harry Sargent.

Announce Wage Cut

The wages were reduced, 25 to 35 per cent.

It was stated this noon that only one department is not affected by the reduction and that is the stocking department, but that employees here will feel the reduction, for it is said that they will have to do their own striping, which is now being done by other men, and that the additional work for which they will receive no pay, will take about three hours every day and, inasmuch as they are on piece work, the change will bring a big reduction in their weekly wages.

Some of the employees of the plant stated this noon that the reductions announced are as follows: Pressers, 33 per cent; machine shavers, 35 per cent; plasters, 7 per cent; seamstresses, 35 per cent. There are several other departments in the plant, but it seems that notices have not yet been posted all over the plant. The beamhouse is not affected at present, for the place has been shut down tight for the past couple of months. President John J. Moulton of the union, who is not working this week because of his political campaign, reported at the shop this noon and after being informed of the reduction in wages, he immediately called a special meeting of the union for next Wednesday evening.

The posting of notices was not a surprise to the employees, for last week the workers of the various departments were addressed by one of the officials of the company, who spoke at length on the necessity of a readjustment of wages in order to meet competition. On the same evening the union held a special meeting and although the matter was discussed at length, no action was taken. It was expected at that time that the reduction would be uniform and that it would not exceed 20 per cent.

DIV. 1, A.O.H. ELECTS OFFICERS

Division 1, A.O.H., held a well attended meeting yesterday afternoon, and a feature of the session was the election of officers. Considerable routine business was transacted and interesting reports were made by the standing committees. The treasurer reported the division to be in excellent condition. The officers chosen for the ensuing year follow: President, Dr. P. J. Bagley; vice president, Patrick J. Downs; financial secretary, William J. Madden; recording secretary, John P. Connolly.

TO THE VOTERS OF LOWELL

Twelve years ago I came to the United States and right to Lowell at the age of 17 years. I became a citizen before I was 22 years old, as soon as it was possible for me to do so. Entering business, I soon found that it was not profitable to do business under my Greek name, and so took its English equivalent. This was done for business reasons, NOT because I was ashamed of my Greek parentage, of which I am justly proud.

I desire to represent the whole city, as well as the 15,000 Greeks, many of whom are citizens and many more seek to be.

I am at the present time President of the Greek Community.

Intelligence of Movie Audience Is Entitled to Consideration

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Every once in a while a critic in "The Journal of the Atlantic Monthly," "The Nation" and other magazines where matter appeals to the cognoscenti takes an unwholesome walk at the movies.

The art of the movies is decried. Ridiculed is the lot even of the public which patronizes the motion picture and knows all that those who point the finger of scorn at it.

All of this has a distinct reaction on the producer and the exhibitor. This reaction does not tend to the betterment of pictures.

ferred by the examination for the draft of the recent national registration. It is estimated that the intelligence of the average adult male in the United States as that of a normal 14-year-old child. The assumption of various psychiatrists concerning the female mind of intelligence is not so startling.

A publication devoted to the interests of the producer and exhibitor calls attention to this statement and then asks why the industry should go further than providing entertainment for 14-year-old children. It is further pointed out that pictures which do not hold an audience have not been great financial successes and producers are urged to make only pictures that are within the understanding of children.

There lies the danger of much of the criticism of the photoplay. It is not constructive. As a result the photoplay suffers artistically and commercially.

It is a paradox for anyone to say that the average intelligence of the adult is not above that of a child. If that were so children would be doing the work of adults. There is no reason to believe that through their own logic rather than by the advice and instruction of their elders.

Motion pictures will be better when both producers and critics come to believe that the average intelligence of the adult is an adult intelligence. Perhaps it could be nothing else.

A Slow-Button Thrill

A current slow-motion reel shows Snowy Baker, Australian horseman, being thrown from his horse in a close-up. The rearing and plunging of the horse and the action of the rider are reduced to a speed by which every movement of muscles can be seen furnishing a greater thrill than if the accident were flashed across the screen in normal action.

PHOTOGRAPHY POTPOURRI

"The Love Charm," by Harvey O'Higgins, is Wanda Hawley's next release.

"Jane," a story by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is to be done in celluloid by Goldwyn.

There are no spooks in the picturization of "The Dust Flower." And it's not a Kilmarnock.

Dorothy Dalton will return to a Western role when she films "Theron of Lost Valley" by Virgil Roe.

The role of Lady Berleson in Rex Ingram's "Prisoner of Zenda" will be played by Florence Deshon.

There is a new picture with "The Proxy Daddy." Several children will have leading roles.

An auto is filled with hooch instead of gasoline in "The Joy Rider." Snub Pollard's next. It does the same stunts a gasoline-filled one would do.

DR. STRICKLAND SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

Dr. F. L. Strickland of Boston university addressed the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon on the subject, "Christ's Conception of Religion."

In a forcible manner Dr. Strickland attempted to show how religion and rheology were not the same thing. He declared that man is often better than his beliefs. Dr. Strickland pointed out how the best in people has come out in spite of their strange beliefs and how every religion and people have had their religions and theologies.

A male quartet composed of Daniel Hinckley, Frank Orrell, Philip F. Lord and David Allen furnished the music of the afternoon. The meeting was presided over by H. F. Howe, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., who introduced the speaker.

H. E. Rockman of the Y.M.C.A. led the singing which is a very interesting feature of these men's meetings. Edward Hurd was in charge of the ushers.

NEW PASTOR COMING TO LOWELL JAN. 1

Rev. Richard Peters of Manchester, Conn., has accepted the call to the Highland Congregational church this city, and will begin his new duties on Jan. 1. His letter of acceptance was read yesterday morning at the regular services of the church by Rev. Asher Anderson, D.D., of Randolph, who has been occupying the pulpit of the church for some time.

The call to Rev. Mr. Peters was a unanimous one.

LOWELL HUNTER
MAKES RECORD

Brings Home Three Deer
After Trek in Maine and
New Hampshire Woods

Indian Guide Was Sole Companion in Big Hunt Over
Snow-Covered Trails

The first Lowell deer hunter to return from a trek through the snowbound forests of northern Maine and
New Hampshire, reached Lowell today with three fine deer and a genuine Indian hunting guide, to boot. The guide is going to stay in town a few weeks and see what the City of Spindles really looks like.

In the meantime, out in the shed back of Ewing G. Hartwell's home at 14 Royal street, are hanging the fruits of the Lowell mill man's lonely march with his guide far into the north on one of the most successful hunting excursions he has made during the past few years.

Mr. Hartwell, widely known in Lowell mill circles and especially in the Saco-Lowell shops, where he is now traffic agent, was a happy man this morning after those deer had been properly hung up on the big hooks back of the house. They are going to make the eating on Thanksgiving day, and if the weather stays cold, there will be deer meat to spare for Christmas, too. Roosevelt always liked his deer meat "hung up" for a few weeks, you know. It had to "ripen" for the late president-hunter and Mr. Hartwell will explain to you just how nice deer meat tastes after it has been hanging up in some woodshed for two or three weeks.

Mr. Hartwell, a man of about 60 winters and many busy summers, is the Indian guide who led the Lowell mill man up through the northern woods. They had one of the toughest marches of the season. There was more than three feet of snow in the Weston location in Maine. That is beyond what is popularly known as Wilson's Mills. The hunter and his Indian guide went overland and also by stream and lake, and they had to hike fast at times to keep from freezing.

They got two deer in Maine, all the law will allow one man to get. Then they decided to cross the New Hampshire line and hunt there. One deer was the result, and then the traffic man had to come home.

Mr. Hartwell is one of the best deer stalkers in Middlesex county, and has been carrying a gun for wild game for the past 15 years. His deer hunting has been confined to the last five years, however, but he has always had good luck. One of the deer he brought

BIG SALEM FIRE ENDANGERS MANY

Eight Families Driven From Homes Into Cold Rain at Early Hour

Woman Returning for Belongings Overcome and Rescued From Building

SALEM, Nov. 21.—Eight families, comprising about 39 persons, were driven to the street in a cold rain today during a fire which damaged three buildings on Essex street and Hawthorne boulevard.

The fire started in the apartment of Mrs. Mary Englehart in a house on Essex street, spread to a small building adjoining and then to a six-family house on Hawthorne boulevard. All of the occupants of the house got out with safety, but Mrs. Margaret DeWitt, who lived in the Hawthorne boulevard house, was overcome when she went back for some of her belongings. She was found unconscious on the stairs by a policeman.

The loss was estimated at $10,000.

PUBLIC NOTICE

"In the summer of 1908 I was suffering with rheumatism and a general breakdown of the system. My circulation was so impaired that the doctors were giving me digitalis for breakfast and an enema for dinner. At one time I thought my time was up on earth. I received some of your circulars and at once ordered a box of Tekol Tablets. I found it to be exactly what I needed, and my circulation began to improve from the first dose, and after using two doses my circulation was as good as it had ever been in my life. In the last year and a half I have used five or six boxes of Tekol and can heartily recommend it for poor circulation. Heart trouble, rheumatism, loss of vitality and as a general bracer for run-down systems. At forty-one years of age, and stronger healthy man than ever before in my life. The tonic effects of Tekol are far superior to whiskey, and there are absolutely no bad after-effects. Tekol is a panacea for despondency, blues and brain fog, in fact, it is far superior to anything I have ever seen for a general run-down condition of the system."

JAIL SENTENCE IN LIQUOR CASE

Witkowski Arraigned for Second Time Within Two Weeks for Violating Law

Sentenced to Two Months and Fined $100—Appealed and Held in $300

Arraigned a second time within two weeks for violating the prohibition law, Michael Witkowski, of Reed's corner, was sentenced to two months in the house of correction and fined $100 by Judge Enright in district court today. The accused entered an appeal and was held in jail of $300.

The jail sentence was imposed on the advice of Sergt. Wm. of the liquor squad, who, when asked by the court what he thought of the case, replied: "This man ought to go to jail your honor." The police testified that Witkowski was fined $100 for illegal liquor keeping November 12 and the day after resumed booze traffic. Late Saturday afternoon Officers Kenney and Cossette said they visited the defendant's premises and purchased a pint of moonshine for $1.50. He had been selling the booze at fifteen cents a drink, the police were told.

Saturday night Sergt. Wm. and members of the liquor squad accompanied by Federal Officer Sheldon visited rooms in a Wall street tenement house, said to be occupied by one John Karaswka and confiscated a still, six barrels of mash, a gallon of moonshine and a number of empty bottles and jugs. Karaswka was placed under arrest on a charge of illegal keeping with intent to sell. He pleaded not guilty in court today and to allow the necessary state analysis of the liquor to be made, trial was put over to Dec. 3.

Michael Wajcbl, fined $50 for unlawfully selling liquor several weeks ago, today paid a $50 balance due on his assessment. He had been granted time to pay the fine.

She Doesn't Smoke

In her apartment at the Hotel Lafayette—already attractive with water colors and sketches brought from England and flaming peach leaves gathered in Washington parks—is the faintest, most delicate suggestion of lavender.

"I use no other perfume," she smiled, then boyishly shifted the beachy-lavender air.

"And I don't smoke—now, isn't that unusually quite seriously?"

"I don't know why—just don't fancy it, must be."

"Your big sunny parks are perfectly delicious! I mean to be out in them, quite a great deal! And do you have clubs? Clubs where women can go and sit about? You know, it's quite necessary in London; we're so far apart that we must have places to gather and chat."

Mrs. Malkin was looking out of the window.

"The sun over here! I shall simply sit and bake in it all day! And oh, yes, do you have infant welfare centers? I assisted with them in England—we had them there, but in your big sunny cities what need would you have of such things?"

Mrs. Malkin was showing me some sketches, some her own work, definitely beautiful things. Then suddenly—

"And don't you have any nice little weeklies over here? Why, your newspapers that come every day stupefy me—they are terrifying when you get them apart!" she laughed. "Never get them together again!"

Loves American Rolls

"Over there I read the papers a little but mostly books from circulating libraries, books of travel, biography and some novels. I mean to join one here. You have them?"

"At our place in Scotland I have a beloved black and white spaniel, Giles—and we go out into the garden, Giles and I, and read for hours! I love gardens."

"Yes, and before you go, I must tell you—I think your American rolls are adorable. I eat almost nothing else!"

CAMPHOR IS SCARCE AND PRICE HIGH

Cinnamomum camphora experts attention!

Perhaps you can tell Lowell druggists where the camphor shipped from the far east is going to.

The stocks in this city at the present time are low and the price higher. Today Boston wholesalers are asking $1.10 a pound for the stuff that comes from Japan, China, Formosa and eastern Asia hamlets. This means a pretty stiff price over the counter.

One New York wholesale druggist is offering small amounts of camphor at 11 a pound, so a Central street apothecary said. The reports that come to Lowell are that the world market is remarkably short of camphor. No one in the big eastern traders can understand why, except that shipments are not coming from Japan, and other eastern sections, and the reason is either an extreme shortage in the camphor production districts, or else some great nation is buying up the drug for ammunition purposes.

It is not generally known that camphor, which has various names in other languages such as camphre du Japon, Kamfer (German), has been found to offer important elements necessary for the manufacture of powerful war explosives. Nitro-glycerine and one other explosive with various ingredients, contains camphor and there has been a world-wide demand for the old-fashioned drug store article bearing the camphor label for sometime.

Druggists who are studying the

JUST BEING HER HUSBAND'S WIFE

By RUTH AGNES ABELING
WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—"All I set out to be is my husband's wife, so put it down 'Mrs. H. W. Malkin!'"

"Do they really say over here, now, like this—Margaret Morris Malkin?" And then, laughing, "How careless! But I have no other career so I shall situation say, they would not be surprised if someone was cornering the camphor market for some nation anxious to use it for the making of explosives. Men of the trade cannot understand when there is no particularly great demand for camphor at this time, why the market is so short everywhere.

Particularly strange, in the opinion of the best informed drug men in Lowell, is the fact that there are great exports of these in the eastern countries from which camphor is obtained, and the so-called shortage cannot be laid to any lack of the stuff "in the raw."

In 1905, Japan exported only about 10,000 pounds. Since then, particularly during the war, the demand has been enormous up to within a year or two.

The demand for camphor during the last part of the great war was about 10,000,000 pounds each year. The consumption in the United States alone in one year of war was over 2,000,000 pounds.

Lowell druggists have not forgotten the great demand made upon them during the great "flu" epidemic in this vicinity. There was such shortage of camphor at that time that the price soared to nearly $8.50 a pound at one time. Before that it had been selling for less than 60 cents a pound, with no demand.

The unusual call was due to the prevailing opinion held by many men and women, who believed if camphor was carried around in one's pockets, it would act as an antidote for and ward off the influenza contagion germs.

Druggists used to say that during the panic over the "flu" almost every other customer that came into the stores bought a bag full of camphor.

China last year furnished 50,000 piculs of camphor to the world. For camphor taken on the general market would mean very high prices, although there is no shortage in Lowell grown in the United States, but only at the present time. The famous fires in southern sections of California, and in the mountains would be missed if

The trees are handsome, give plenty of shade and are ornamental. They resemble somewhat the sassafras trees. Some of the trees bear for 50 years or more. The natives cut holes in the trees and allow the juice to run out something like the method used in securing maple sugar in Vermont in the early spring. Cups are placed under the trees and the camphor runs and soon forms little balls or eskers, which are easily picked and carried away to the packing houses for shipment abroad.

Natives of eastern countries have obtained millions of dollars by growing camphor trees and taking good care of them. No one is allowed to tap a camphor tree for its juice until it is at least 10 years of age. On trees that are full grown, there is one

ABLE ADDRESS BY THOMAS MULLIN

Discusses "Capital Sin of the World" Before League of Catholic Women

Madam Richardson, Noted
Singer, Entertains With Operatic Selections

The League of Catholic Women maintained its status as one of the leading women's organizations in the state at its meeting in Associate hall yesterday afternoon, when it presented one of the most interesting programs ever offered in this city. Madam Richardson, formerly of the Paris grand opera, in operatic selections of rare charm, and Thomas Mullin, Esq., of Boston, in a lecture entitled "The Capital Sin of the World—What Is It?", which he delivered with forceful eloquence, shared the honors. Piano accompaniments for the operatic selections were capably furnished by Charles La Pierre, a pianist of extraordinary ability. The hall was crowded to the doors by an audience of about 1500, whose frequent applause demonstrated keen appreciation. Mrs. John T. Donehue, president of the league, presided in an able manner, and seated with her on the platform was Rev. Joseph A. Curtin, spiritual adviser of the organization.

The first number on the program was an ensemble singing led by Mrs. Joseph Green, with violin accompaniment by Miss Marie O'Donnell. Next came a selection by the league's mandolin and guitar orchestra, under the direction of Joseph A. Handley. After brief remarks concerning the organization's welfare, Mrs. Donehue introduced Madam Richardson.

The distinguished singer, who is a personal friend of Mrs. Donehue, was for several years prima donna with the grand opera in Paris and the possessor of a soprano voice of excellent range and exceedingly pleasing tone, chose as her first selection the garden scene from Faust. She said that she had been requested to present this scene exactly as she had in Paris, although the scenic effects were altogether lacking. After a resume of the theme (which concerns the meeting of Faust—who has made an infamous bargain with Satan, trading his soul for renewed youth—and the lovely girl by the gift of a casket of jewels, with which she adorns herself for self-admiration), the singer proceeds to give such a skillful interpretation of the role of Marguerite that the audience could visualize the action of the scene when all the accessories to its presentation were at hand. It was a superb bit of acting, which, coupled with Madam Richardson's truly splendid voice, moved the audience to tumultuous applause.

The accompanist, Mr. La Pierre, then gave an artistic rendition of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 12, which received merited appreciation. Proceeding with her program, Madam Richardson sang Gounod's "Ave Maris," the grand aria, "Salut a Toi," from Wagner's Tannhäuser, and Jocelyn's "Berceuse" or "Lullaby." On the last named selection a violin obligato was skillfully rendered by Miss Marlette Brunelle. In response to the audience's importunities Madam Richardson generously added two encore numbers, "Morning," by Oley Speaks, and "The Years of the Spring," by Mrs. H. A. A. Beach, her first selection in English of the afternoon. Madam Richardson will give the same program at Carnegie hall, New York city, next Friday evening.

Mrs. Donehue then introduced as the speaker of the day Thomas Mullin, Esq., of Boston. Mr. Mullin is a graduate of Harvard college, a former teacher in the Boston high school, chairman of the committee on Americanization and unemployment in the city of Boston by appointment of Mayor Peters and a lecturer of wide repute. His address was interspersed throughout with remarks of an extremely humorous nature, which were received by the audience with gales of laughter.

Mr. Mullin said that it was a decided embarrassment to him to be introduced as a noted speaker; that it was new to him to be so regarded, but, perhaps, he should not object to the honor. The audience was due for an antimax of disillusionment, however, and his heart almost failed him at the thought. He would agree, now,

PASTOR BESIEGED IN HOME

THE REV. G. H. BORRILL IN HIS BARRICADED HOME EATING A MEAL PASSED TO HIM THROUGH THE WINDOW.

By N. E. A. Service

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Behind barbed-wire entanglements and heavily barricaded doors, the Rev. G. H. Borrill, a clergyman, for nine months has been besieged in his home in the heart of London.

Nine stalwart detectives, working in eight-hour shifts of three, day and night, are the besieging force.

Last Christmas the Rev. Borrill refused to pay a tax levy imposed by the socialist borough council of Islington. Because he, he said, was an opponent of socialism and didn't have enough to meet the levy, anyway.

Unable to seize his property, the

REPORT OF DEATHS

FOUND IN LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—A natural gas field with tremendous production potentialities has been uncovered in northern Louisiana, according to a report made public here yesterday, after an investigation by engineers of the United States bureau of mines.

A productive area of 212 square miles, or roughly 135,000 acres, in a solid block near the city of Monroe is outlined in the report.

The report estimates that the total amount of gas remaining in the reservoir is roughly four trillion and 750 billion cubic feet.

SAYS BIRTH CONTROL UNFIT TOPIC

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Protest against the use in New York of the open forum for disseminating the idea of birth control was made in a statement issued yesterday by Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of New York.

"Common prudence and decency," he said, "should keep such discussion within the walls of a clinic, or only for the care of the mature and experienced."

The laws of God and man, science, public policy and human experience, he said, all were condemnatory of birth control "practiced by a few irresponsible individuals without even the approval, as far as I know, of a reputable body of physicians or a medical society, whose province it is to advise the public on such matters."

He declared the tenets of birth control were in direct opposition to the teaching of many distinguished scientists of the world who had been making a serious study of the causes of impending deterioration of the race, which had been foreseen by well-known biologists.

The recent congress of eugenics had emphasized the necessity of the retention of monogamous marriage with a limitation of divorce; more children in the families of the well-to-do as a moral duty; earlier marriages, a more sheltered life for mothers and unselfish devotion to the family as a patriotic duty.

Physicians had found, he added, that successive children in a family, as well as the parents, were almost always stronger and healthier and that children marked for special genius very often were born after the birth of the common weak.

The voice of Theodore Roosevelt, the statement continued, still echoes throughout the world in his strong denunciation of race suicide and the sins against the cradle; his love of family life remains one of the most wholesome memories of his most noble character.

He said he felt it a public duty to protest against open birth control discussion and that he did so, not in a sectarian spirit, but in the broader one of the common weal.

"The Catholic church's condemnation of birth control, except it be self-control, he said, is based "on the natural law, which is the eternal law of God applied to men and commanding the preservation of moral order and forbidding its disturbance. Therefore, the church has but one possible thing to do, namely, to accept and obey the will of the supreme law-giver."

The First American Birth Control Conference was held here last week. The first public meeting was halted by police and Mrs. Margaret Sanger and Miss Mary Winsor, two of the speakers, were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct. They were discharged when arraigned in court the next day.

ROWS AND ROWS OF CASES OF BEER FOR SICK PEOPLE—INSET IS A BOTTLER PUTTING ON THE CAPS.

By N. E. A. Service

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 21.—That old familiar odor is in the air again up here—when the wind's in the right direction.

No mistake—it's beer!

The breweries anticipated that ruling. They likewise anticipated that lots of people would be sick. So they started making beer.

The biggest brewery already has several carloads ready for distribution.

It's all, because the Treasury department issued that ruling about beer for the sick.

Want some? Here's how to get it:

First, get sick.

Then get a prescription.

And the beer's yours!

But remember that you'll have to pay 37¢ a case extra for druggist's and doctors' fees, and with the machine in which they were riding.

According to orders received, Company M, Third Regiment, will be federalized at the armory Monday night. All members are ordered to report at 7 o'clock.

HOT WARD CONTESTS

Each Ward Has Eight of Its Own for Councilor—The Candidates

In the wards, the councillor fight is being hotly contested. Slates have been picked in practically every ward. As a rule the experienced campaigners are said to have the lead, but there are so many unknown quantities involved that calculations are liable to be upset in many cases. The younger candidates, in some instances at least, are almost certain to show a surprise.

COULD NOT HIT LICK OF WORK IN MONTHS

HOWARD MAN NOW ON JOB EVERY DAY DECLARES TANLAC IS BEYOND PRICE

"Here's hoping that my experience will be of benefit to others," said Harry A. Thompson, well known carpenter, 19 Main street, Howard, R. I., as he gave out the following statement regarding Tanlac:

"What I owe to Tanlac can hardly be measured in dollars and cents. For five years I suffered from lumbago every winter from the time the cool weather set in until the next summer. My back hurt. I tried nothing else. I could hardly get up out of my chair. At times I hurt so bad I just had to grit my teeth to keep from yelling, and many nights I couldn't sleep, and could hardly turn over in bed. During these attacks I couldn't even sleep over to my house, and, for a long time, I was unable to earn a dollar. Nothing ever gave more than temporary relief, and this fall as the cool weather set in and my troubles got a grip on me, I was almost desparate and had but very little hope of ever being any better."

"However, I decided to try Tanlac. I also took the Tanlac rheumatic treatment, and while on my first bottle I noticed an improvement. I've finished my third bottle of Tanlac now, and my back is in such good condition I can work right on, climbing ladders, sawing or lifting timbers, and still feel good when night comes. My friends say I can't talk anything but Tanlac, and I feel that I am making enough for the good it has done me."

Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable Plnts are sold in Lowell by Green's Drug store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; by Wright Drug Co., Billerica, Mass.; A. D. Phillips, New Bedford, Mass.; by Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town.—Adv.

STALE BLOOD AFFECTS FEELINGS

Pepto-Mangan Makes Red Blood, Restores Healthy Glow

It is gradually, very gradually, that the effects of weakened blood become apparent. Generally there is a feeling of lassitude. It is like a harmless, lazy heaviness, and the complexion becomes muddied.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the very first thing a woman should think of taking for a stale-looking complexion. It drives out the poisons that ruin complexions.

But it is not only the effect that Gude's Pepto-Mangan has upon the complexion that makes it so valuable. New healthy blood causes an improvement in feelings, a return to the usual style of enthusiasm, a sensation of warmth and glow, an appetite that eagerly awaits the next meal.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan makes new blood. It comes in liquid, or tablet form, both having the same medicinal value. The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on every package.—Adv.

Be strong, well, with stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatic pains, aching back or kidney trouble caused by body made aches.

If you suffer from bladder weakness, with burning, scalding pains, or if you are in and out of bed half a dozen times a night, you will appreciate the rest, comfort and strength this treatment should give.

To prove The Williams Treatment conquers kidney and bladder disease, rheumatism and all other ailments which are excessive and aching, no matter how chronic or stubborn. If you have never tried The Williams Treatment, we will give one 85c bottle, (32 doses) free if you will cut out this notice and send it with your name and address. Please send 10 cents to help pay post and handling fees. The D. A. Williams Company, Dept. V-2051, 1 O. Building, East Hampton, Conn. Send at once and you will receive by parcel post a regular 85c bottle, without charge and without incurring any obligation. Only one bottle to the same address or family.—Adv.

HEALING CREAM QUICKEST RELIEF FOR HEAD COLDS

Colds and catarrh yield like magic to soothing, healing, antiseptic cream that penetrates through every air passage and relieves swollen, inflamed membranes of nose and throat. Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Hawking and snuffing stop. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balsam from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy known for more than fifty years.—Adv.

strength from a variety of causes.

In ward 1, many of the old-timers predict that Otto W. Butler and Frank K. Stearns will have a comfortable margin when the returns are in. Frank J. Hublin, however, is conducting an active campaign, and the same applies to John A. Mackenzie. Both of these men claim that their supporters will land them on top. Francis H. Goward and Alexander Rountree both assert that they are very much in the running, and John J. Connors, the first man in the city to take out papers after the charter election, may prove a surprise.

In ward 2 Eugene A. Fitzgerald has a big advantage owing to the fact that he resides in precinct 3 where nearly half of the ward voters are registered and which generally decides the outcome of the ward's vote. John J. Keefe and Daniel F. Cookley are conducting an intensive street and house to house canvass which should bring results. John J. Queenan has the advantage of much previous experience, and is confident of nomination. Joseph H. Bosca has covered the ward well with circulars, evidently believing in that form of campaigning. George Kavouras will probably have to rely mainly on the Greek vote for his support, although he asserts that he has many promises from other quarters.

In ward 3 nobody seems to know who will land the coveted position. Max Goldman lays claim to considerable popularity in the ward and stresses his qualifications for the nomination. Frank E. MacLean has conducted a very quiet campaign, and it is asserted that he is one of the strong men on the list. Donald M. Cameron is popular and many think he will poll a heavy vote. Louis J. Lord is well known to everybody and his friends think he will be a certainty. Joseph Beauparlant is very strong with the younger element in his vicinity, and bases his confidence of success to some extent on his claim that he sponsored the Washington park movement, although Mr. Lord also claims to have been behind this move. Elwyn Dearth is another who has chosen the quiet method of campaigning, and his friends predict his nomination.

In ward 4 there is a contest between the younger men led by Fred A. Sadler, William P. McLaughlin and William T. Dugan against John J. O'Connell and George B. Reache, two former members of the old city council. Thomas J. A. Dowd, a business man, in that ward is also making an active canvass. Much interest is taken in the canvass being made by the young men, and there is wide speculation as to whether they or the older men will win the nominations.

In ward 5 there are ten lively candidates contesting for the two places on the primary ballot. Something of a sensation has resulted from an anonymous letter sent to election commission protesting against allowing James J. Angelo, the father of Paul J. Angelo, one of the ward candidates, to serve as an election officer at the primaries. The counting of the ballots is a joint affair in every precinct, and no one election officer can tamper with the figures without the knowledge of the others. Paul Angelo is a law student, well known in the ward, but several of the other candidates are equally well known, and all of them are making a very active canvass for the coveted nominations.

The contest in ward 6 has shown some enthusiasm during the last few days, with Joseph A. N. Chretien reported the leader. Pierre A. Brousseau, said to be very strong in West Centralville, Arthur St. Hilaire, widely supported by the members of the various organizations to which he belongs, as well as many of the other voters of the district. Robert J. Laird, William N. Fadden and Joseph Rousset are each making an active canvass and receiving encouragement wherever they go.

In ward 7 Cornelius F. Cronin, the well known auctioneer, heads the list on the ballot and is reported to be very confident of success. David B. Kinghorn is employed in the governor's office in Boston and has not given much time to the canvass, but he is widely known in the ward and is likely to receive liberal support. Thomas Chadwick and Arthur Genest were in the city government under the old charter and both are confident of ranking high in the contest when the votes are counted. George T. Hobson, John F. Regan and John J. Bean are making an active canvass throughout the ward.

In ward 8, there are eight candidates seeking nominations, and among them several well-known citizens who would receive more than average support if they had run at large. Such a candidate is William N. Goodell, former president of the chamber of commerce and now paymaster of the Locks and Canals Co. Edward F. Woodward, son of Charles N., manager of Bright, Sears Co., of which the candidate is cashier, is making an active canvass throughout the ward, as is Edward J. McVey, well known young lawyer, and Arthur B. Chadwick, an accountant. Fred Harrison is well known in republican politics, and his friends expect that he will receive support from the old-time political workers of the ward. Sam Dean, Orrin B. Ranlett, 2d, and William T. Carr are also active in the campaign.

In ward 9, Charles H. Hobson, the well known business man, is a candidate, but he hasn't asked anybody for a vote, relying upon his reputation in business circles to bring him all the support he needs for nomination. He is the leading member of the firm of Hobson & Lawler. Peter F. McMenemy is employed at the Boston & Maine railroad freight office as clerk, and has had long experience in transportation matters. He is not giving much time to his canvass, but he is widely known in the ward and his friends predict that he will get a big vote. Graham R. Whidden, Thomas McFadden, George A. Tyrrell and John E. Toy are all favorably known in the district, and each has a following on which he can rely for support at the primaries.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatres Own Press Agents

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Attention is called to the three performances complete in every detail, to be given at the B. F. Keith theatre on Thanksgiving day. Without doubt there will be throngs anxious to view the present week's big show, and to provide for all Managers Ben Pickell has arranged to give the three shows the first, at 1:45 p. m. in the afternoon. The second will begin at 6:30 p. m. and the third at 8:45 p. m.

One of the biggest of headliners is provided for the week, in the person of Florence Ames and Adelaide Winthrop who will give their wonderfully brilliant thumb nail revue, "Alice in Wonderland," the destruction of buildings, the heroes who figured in that memorable event, the marching of troops and many of the exciting scenes of that rebellion against British authorities.

The entertainment was given by Shingo O'Farrell and company and John J. Nolan, the famous violinist, Mr. O'Farrell sang several Irish songs, which won great applause and then in dialogues with members of the company, he gave side-splitting exhibitions of Irish wit and humor. He has an array of original Irish jokes and songs, and duos and duos, including Miss Catherine Sullivan, known as the songbird of Erin, sang a song in Gaelic and then gave the same in English. Her rendition of "The Last Rose of Summer" was particularly good. Mr. O'Farrell's "Mollie Branigan" and "The Girl from Clare" were excellent, and the audience encored again and again. One section of the motion pictures dealt with the burning of Cork, the activities of the Black and Tans, the Irish Republican army, the Irish leaders in action and other events that are of the greatest interest at the present time.

The surrounding bill is of premier quality. The Elm City Four, considered one of the very best of vaudeville quartets, will be on the list after appearing two evenings at the New Hampshire Hippodrome. The Little Savers, which Henry H. Rooney and Co. will present, is a snappy comedy based along unusual lines. Then there is Joe Town who has his own special line of entertainment. There isn't another man on the stage who can hit as many different acts and scenes as he does. Pratte Gertrude Morgan is the originator of a comedy song cycle, which has many pleasing concinnities, and Max York has a dog school which is one of the funniest things ever. Dell and Glass are eccentric musical clowns.

OPERA HOUSE

Another real treat is promised the patrons of the Opera House for this week when the Lowell Players, directed by John Haviland, will present "God's Country" and "The Law" a production of a most unusual and satisfying sort. Miss Shirley Macgrath, the talented young leading actress of the Players, will be seen in the role of "Mary" and Kalmair, Matus will be seen as "Kid Burns" while the other members of the company will be assigned to parts that will afford them exceptional opportunity to reflect their versatility. Besides the regular musical numbers, all of which have been selected and rendered with fine effect. The pictures were also good and the entertainment as a whole was highly enjoyed. Manager Schatz announced that owing to the fact that the program was not extensively advertised and that there were many counter attractions, the company would give a return engagement next Sunday afternoon and evening. He felt that the excellence of the program would be duly appreciated.

THE STRAND

"God's Country" and "The Law" a James Oliver Curwood production with a cast of 100, will open at the Strand on Saturday evening. The picture will be a production of a most unusual and satisfying sort. Miss Shirley Macgrath, the talented young leading actress of the Players, will be seen in the role of "Mary" and Kalmair, Matus will be seen as "Kid Burns" while the other members of the company will be assigned to parts that will afford them exceptional opportunity to reflect their versatility. Manager Schatz announced that owing to the fact that the program was not extensively advertised and that there were many counter attractions, the company would give a return engagement next Sunday afternoon and evening. He felt that the excellence of the program would be duly appreciated.

The scene is New York's famous lower East Side and the central character a youngster with a small violin, receiving his first violin from his mother on her seventieth birthday, the boy later developing into a world-known genius. Then the war comes, and he returns from overseas with a wounded shoulder, but it is thought will prevent him from ever playing again. But, in the grand circle of his life the injured shoulder is restored to strength and his happiness returns.

Alma Rubens is the featured player in "Humoresque," which also includes in its cast Vera Gordon and Gaston Glass. The picture is a Paramount release.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Jack Holt in "The Call of the North" and Marlon Davies in "Enchantment" are the feature attractions at the Merrimack Square theatre.

OVER THE HILL
Beginning with a continuous performance next Sunday afternoon and evening, the Merrimack Square theatre will offer all new, the main picture picture play of the day, "Over the Hill," adapted from the world famous poem by Will Carleton. It will come to Lowell directly from a run of more than a year on Broadway and will be presented exactly as it is being shown in Tremont Temple, Boston, where it has been breaking all records since last August. Four performances daily will be given in Lowell at popular prices, 25 and 35 cents for matinees and 35 and 50 cents for evenings, plus

TO FORM BRANCH HERE

Campaign in Lowell for

Massachusetts League of

Women Voters

An extensive campaign will be opened in Lowell and surrounding towns this week for the organization of local branches of the Massachusetts League for Women Voters. In charge of the Lowell work is Miss Cornelia W. Morton, organizer, whose headquarters are at 10 Arlington street, Boston.

Miss Morton, who is one of the most active organizers in the state and who expects excellent results here in Lowell and neighboring towns, explained the work of the league as follows: "My education, the league organizes classes in education for citizenship to help every citizen to become an intelligent voter."

"By legislation, the league will carry on non-partisan political work to secure better and more uniform laws and law enforcement."

"By co-operation, the league stands ready to co-operate with all existing organizations for social welfare."

The history and principles of political parties are to be carefully studied, also the work of town and city committees, the raising of campaign funds, proper use of campaign money, naturalization, study of state and local elections, primaries and caucuses. The league is anxious to extend its membership into every city and town in the state, because, the organizer says:

"Women are now found in most administrative departments both state and federal, having to do with enforcement of laws relative to education, public health, child welfare and industrial matters. Women voters should make special studies of the work done in these departments and give understanding, sympathy and support to men in administrative positions."

The league plans to aid in the efforts made to secure efficiency in government, by arousing women to their civic responsibilities, by urging women to become active members of existing political parties, by supplying unbiased information on public question and by supporting needed legislation."

Miss Alice Stone Blackwell is honorary president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr., president. The regional director for Middlesex county organization work is Mrs. H. Addison, Mrs. True Worthy White, well known in Lowell club women's circles, is chairman of the publicity committee.

NOW FOR THE VERDICT

For all practical purposes the campaign or fight for votes is over and now comes the balloting and the verdict of the people.

There can be no doubt that the campaign impressed the citizens in general with all the main features of electioneering are never before. Even under the old charter, which called for nine aldermen, twenty-seven councilmen and a school board of nine members, there was not nearly so much excitement and general confusion as to what should be done or whom should be supported.

Even now, as the work of the campaign closes, we venture to say that a vast number of our citizens are perfectly bewildered as to what they should do in regard to the candidates who have been appealing to them for the past two weeks.

On the majority contest it is not so very difficult to arrive at a decision at least for those who are personally acquainted with the candidates and know their character and capabilities. But on dealing with candidates at large for the council and school board, the matter is entirely different. There are sixty-two candidates seeking the office of councilor at large, and in looking over the list, it is only reasonable to suppose that most voters will cast their ballots for the candidates with whom they are acquainted in preference to those of whom they know nothing except by common report. The citizens who vote for candidates on the strength of reputation alone are very few.

Thus, the superfluity of candidates has its disadvantages, and this will doubtless appear in the results of the primaries. It is but another proof of the necessity of some nominating body such as a Civic League, to assist the voters in making the best possible selections. No such body has come to the aid of the voters and for this reason, nobody may feel surprised if the selections made at the primaries are disappointing.

In reference to the ward contests, the case is very much different. The voters in the wards are personally acquainted with the candidates who seek the nominations, or if they are not, they can easily find out all they want to know of them. As a result, we may expect a wiser selection from these contests than from those at large. It is very generally expected that the wards will select their best representatives, whereas the electorate will be unable to center upon the most desirable candidates and to select from the entire list those who are most likely to give the most efficient service to the city. This cannot be done if any large proportion of the voters follow the rule of voting only for those who have solicited their support. Some of the best candidates for the council and school board have not asked anybody to vote for them, yet that is not a reason why they should not be dealt with purely on their merits.

It should be remembered that the result of the primaries will reflect the intelligence of the electorate in selecting the officials who are to serve them in the city government for the next two years. The Sun has steadily defended the electorate against the charge that they do not want good government; and we hope that the result of the primaries will bear out our contention. We realize the difficulties of the present situation, owing to the bewildering number of candidates; but those who would rise to the importance of the occasion and serve the city's best interests must eliminate the unfit, after which there will remain a sufficient number of capable candidates from whom to select the required number of councilors and members of the school board.

The verdict of the citizens is next in order.

LIMITATIONS OF ARMS PARLEY

Already it is becoming apparent that the arms conference in Washington can go very far in the direction of abolishing the more dreadful instrumentalities of war, such, for example, as the submarine, poison gases and aerial bombing unless such changes should be universally adopted. The United States, England and Japan can definitely arrange to stop building dreadnaughts, because they are the only powers using them. But if they should decide against the use of large submarines, poison gas and bombing-planes, that would not prevent other powers, such as Germany and Russia, from using these weapons of war with the most destructive effects. Hence, it appears that already there is a tendency to have the arms conference merge into an international body, to include all powers which would come down to the idea and plan of the League of Nations already in existence, but unfortunately not carrying out the main functions for which it was organized.

The League of Nations, without the United States, can never accomplish the much, and that the United States will eventually enter that League does not day against competitive naval armaments.

Education, like water, does not rise above its own level. Is not this a good reason why no uneducated person should be sent to the school board?

Tomorrow and the day after, the people of this city will have learned a great lesson in civics.

The candidates who make the most noise are like the empty vessels that hold the great powers under the make most sound.

SEEN AND HEARD

Men who run on a blur often fall over.

"Thanksgiving originated 300 years ago." How time does fly!

About this time of year hunters remember rabbits injure crops.

Philippines sell stories to forty countries. Maybe that's why they need protection.

"Walcot, Ia., has no church," says a news item. No one seems to know how the fact was discovered.

Explaining the Climax

"Do tell me something about the play," she said to the young man. "I say the climax was superb," "You are inclined to think it was very good," said Percy. "Can't you describe it to me?" "Well, the hero came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of lillies. The hero emerged from a large bunch of purple flowers, and as soon as he perceived him she fell upon him, stabbed him at neck, half conscious, into a very handsome altrette. This may sound queer, but the woman in front of me wouldn't remove her hat, and that's how it looked."

A BETTER OUTLOOK

Mercantile publications all report improved business conditions in many quarters. The marked improvement in the textile industry, particularly in the woolen and worsted branches, is refreshing. Not a few mills in New England have started night runs, yet along comes the pessimist and begins to shout "It is not permanent." Be that as it may, business is decidedly better, day envelopes are heavier and mill towns and cities are showing the effect in greater spending, reducing bills due the merchants and landlords, and on any pleasant Saturday afternoon there is evidence of sane prosperity and more happiness.

The thing to do is to silence the creaker. Spend normally and the present revival in business will not only be permanent, but there will be growing demands and a call for more men to turn out goods and things will boom. It has happened before after a "hard times" period; it will happen again.

"If we do not hang together we shall assuredly all hang separately," said John Hancock.

He voiced a sentiment that has been the foundation of the progress and prosperity of the United States. Old familiar words—unity and co-operation—but they are forces that nation or a business organization must depend upon if there is to be a realization of mutual interdependence and a real pull-together spirit.

TO THE VOTERS

Let every registered voter go to the polls tomorrow as soon after the noon hour as possible and vote for:

- 1 candidate for mayor.
- 6 for councilor-at-large.
- 1 for ward councilor.
- 9 for the school board.

Total 17

Every voter has a right to vote for number of candidates here stated. To vote for more would spoil the ballot; but the ballot will not be affected by voting for a less number. For example, if any ballot shows a cross marked opposite the names of but three candidates for councilor-at-large, the votes will be credited to the candidates indicated.

Some people think the women will have difficulty in marking their ballots; but we anticipate no such trouble. We predict that the women will spoil fewer ballots than the men. Care is necessary to avoid mistakes, which go to swell the number of blank ballots for each office.

The question of how to vote is easy compared to that of deciding for whom to vote.

THE HOLIDAY APPEALS

Again we are asked to contribute our mites to swell the Thanksgiving funds being raised by worthy Lowell charitable institutions to provide food and clothing for those who are in need of friendly aid. Let us not forget that such aid extended in the right spirit, with a cheerful heart and ungrudgingly, will react on the soul. The various calls for charity during the last two months of the dying year, sometimes appeal to many who do not help the poor and unfortunate at any other time. The need of giving generously is always with us. Large gifts are not necessary, but many gifts are desired to make the charity funds adequate to go around and bring a little joy and sunshine to those who need them most. It was wise William Penn, now with the ages, who wrote that little epic:

"I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good work, therefore, I can do or show to any fellow creature let me do it now! Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

MINOR CHARTER DEFECTS

It is unfortunate that the charter provides that in primary elections the polls shall open at noon. It would have been better if the fixing of the hours had been left to the city council or the election commission. This and some other minor defects of the charter will have to be remedied as soon as possible. The election of the entire board for two years is another feature that is not as it should be, and that, too, may have to be remedied. That was forced on the commission by the legislature. Unfortunately some other defects will be discovered that may also require modification, but it is only in this way that the city charter can be perfected. The charter commission had to yield too much to the legislature in order to get the instrument enacted in any form. As a result, some of the changes made on Beacon Hill may have to be reversed when their impracticability shall have been fully demonstrated.

It shouldn't be necessary to destroy thirty capital ships to convince the world of our earnestness in the movement to secure an international hell-enemy that League does not day against competitive naval armaments.

Education, like water, does not rise above its own level. Is not this a good reason why no uneducated person should be sent to the school board?

STATE SPENDS VAST SUM ON HIGHWAYS

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Nearly $5,000,000 has been expended by the commonwealth this year on state highways, a figure which has never before been approached in this state.

Some idea of the tremendous amount of work done may be gained from the fact that the state has built 239 miles of entirely new road, or has entirely reconstructed old roads; it has maintained 1355 miles of state highways and in co-operation with cities and towns has assisted in the maintenance of 631 miles of local highway. This great showing has been due largely to a most remarkable combination of favorable circumstances. In the first place, weather conditions have been ideal practically for the entire period from July 1 to the present; there have been large numbers of men anxious for work; great quantities of road building materials have been obtainable, all at prices far below those demanded during the past few years; and there have been a lot of contractors "hungry" for road building contracts in order to permit their organizations to be kept intact during the period of business depression.

All these factors have proven beneficial in many ways. More roads have been built, and at lower cost, and it is the expectation of officials of the department of public works that experience will show them to be better roads, because of the increased efficiency of labor. Not only has it been possible at all times to obtain all the men necessary for a particular job, but the fact that there was always a man waiting for a job had the effect of making the workers more careful in performing the work allotted to them.

From the standpoint of cost, changes which have been operative this year have also been most marked. Roads which cost $10,000 per mile last year have been put in during the past few months at from $25,000 to $30,000 per mile.

In its road building program, the state has received substantial aid from the federal government under the federal aid law, passed in 1913 for the encouragement of the good road movement throughout the country. This law provides that the federal government will pay one-half of the cost, but not exceeding $20,000 per mile, of each new highway built by a state, and the work already done this year, together with that planned for next year, will entitle the commonwealth to collect about $4,000,000 from Uncle Sam. There is but one string to the proposition, and that is that the state, in order to obtain the federal money, must agree to maintain the newly constructed roads for all time.

HOYT.

Run-down, weak and thin people who were eating yeast for health, have found that yeast brings far better and quicker results when it is taken with iron.

Through this splendid combination of iron, now embodied in Ironized Yeast, folks who for years suffered with loss of strength, nervousness, anemia, colds and other "run-down" conditions, are regaining glorious health and strength almost as if by magic.

This is because Ironized Yeast supplies run-down bodies with just the elements they need—vitamins and iron. These two substances have been found absolutely essential to good

CONDITIONS IN EUROPE

Rev. W. H. Van Allen at St. Anne's—Doesn't Despair of Europe

Rev. William H. van Allen, D.D., of Boston, delivering an address last evening at St. Anne's church, declared that the British empire would endure as "a most potent and indispensable force for the progress of civilization." In referring to the Irish question, he said he could "offer no solution."

"It seems to me to be a conflict of interests which cannot possibly be harmonized," he said. "For a peaceful settlement one side must give in, and I have my own idea as to which side should give in for the good of Ireland."

The speaker found many lessons in the world war which he said has "changed our morale, our business and our cost of living." The man who boasts that he is 100 per cent American, he said, is not an American, but a provincial whose vision is limited by the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Dr. van Allen said he had just returned from a tour of Europe and had an opportunity to see the real conditions of things across the sea. He did not believe that the great nations were nearing collapse, he said. He pictured conditions in the British empire and told of the strife in India and Ireland.

He predicted that he firmly believed that Britain would "hang on and struggle through" all her present difficulties. He predicted that the burden of heavy taxation in England would soon be lifted.

JEWISH WELFARE BOARD

Story of One of the Most Economical and Most Effective Drives in History

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 21.—The amazing story of the most economical and most effective drive in the history of modern fund-raising was revealed at a meeting of the executive council of the Jewish Welfare Board, in a report by Leon J. Obermayer, president of the Philadelphia Young Men's Hebrew association. Mr. Obermayer announced that a drive for $760,000, for the erection of Jewish Community centers had brought forth from the Philadelphia community $82,000, and that the drive which had been scheduled to run from November 1 to 8, had been officially ended two days before the latter date, $12,000 above the goal having been secured. This sum, he declared, was raised at a cost of approximately $15,000, less than two per cent, a figure which experts in social service financing state is the low water mark for a drive of this character.

POSTMASTERS TO AID IN LOCATING MISSING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Postmasters throughout the country have been asked by Postmaster General Itys to lend a hand in attempts to locate missing people. Never before, has it offered such assistance.

While they must not interfere with private affairs or act as a collection agency, postmasters were instructed to investigate each case referred to them and when convinced of its genuineness to make inquiries of other postmasters and advise those interested.

JAPANESE PAPERS URGE HELP FOR CHINA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (By the Associated Press)—Recent issues of the influential organs of the press in the far east, just received here, express unanimously the hope that the Washington conference will devise some means of co-operative aid for China.

The dominating note in most articles is the desirability of the powers sinking any rivalries they may have in the common purpose of helping China since it would be for their own future interest as well as that of the Chinese.

Everything possible should be done, it is pointed out, to establish order and if possible to set up some central authority. The next suggestion is that means should be found of providing money to pay and disband unnecessary troops and to establish the nation's credit structure.

The China year book of 1921-1922 is quoted as estimating the debt of China to be $2,000,000,000, with a deficit of $9,000,000 a month according to the Peking treasury.

Offer to pay interest due on two loans extended to China by American banking companies has been made by the Chinese Bankers association. Paul S. Reisch, legal counselor to the Chinese government said last night in a statement discussing China's financial situation. The association, however, has requested that payment of principal be extended for six months or a year.

"We must understand that an extensive popular movement is going on in China for the reorganization of the government in the provinces and the nation," the statement said.

Keen response is being made to the plans initiated by the Lowell Alumnae of Radcliffe college for the benefit of the $3,000,000 drive being made all over the country in behalf of Radcliffe.

Among these plans is one which promises to be a unique event—the first appearance of the Harvard Dramatic Club in this city. The officers of the club are J. M. Brown, B. K. Little, Howard Phillips, W. M. Tucker, D. M. Oenslager, all of the class of Harvard '23. Their performance, which is to be presented in the Colonial theater, Saturday evening, December 3, will include two plays given for the first time in this country, "The Violins of Cremona," by Francois Coppee and "The Witches' Mountain," by Julio Sanchez Gardel.

Great effort is being expended by the club on this performance it is anticipated that it will be a highly artistic as well as a notable social affair.

Active plans are in progress. The committee in charge, of which Miss Frances A. Masterson is chairman, met yesterday and the details of different aspects in connection with the event were discussed and settled upon. The list of patronesses will be announced within a few days.

TO TEST LEGALITY OF "SHIMMY" DANCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The courts will be asked to decide whether dancing the "shimmy" in extreme form is illegal in Chicago as a result of a series of raids conducted by the police early yesterday, it was announced by the state's attorney's office. A score of cabarets, gambling houses, and saloons were invaded by the police in the most concerted drive launched against them in many months.

At the Entertainers' cafe, a South Side establishment frequently by both whites and negroes, the proprietor and several inmates were arrested. In their prosecution it will come to determine the shimmy's legality, it was said, for it is planned to prosecute them under a seldom-invoked law which makes any person producing or taking part in an immoral dance subject to a $20 fine or one year's imprisonment.

Officials declared that the shimmy was immoral.

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Every once in a while some writer in "The Bookman," the Atlantic Monthly, The Nation and other magazines whose matter appeals to the cognoscenti takes an unwholly wading in the movies.

The art of the movies is decried. Screen players are berated. Ridicule is the lot even of the public which patrons the motion picture and knows more about it as an industry and an art than those who point the finger of scorn at it.

All of this has a distinct reaction on the producer and the exhibitor.

It tends to the betterment of pictures.

fered by the examination for the draft of the recent war, the national research council estimated the average age of the male in the United States to be that of a normal 14-year-old child. The assumption of various psychiatrists concerning the female mean of intelligence is not so flattering.

A publication devoted to the interests of the producer and exhibitor calls attention to this statistic and then asks why the industry should go further than provide entertainment for 11-year-old children. It is further pointed out that pictures which do not hold an appeal for children have not been great financial successes and producers marked out many pictures that are aimed at the understanding of children.

There lies the danger of much of the criticism of the photoplay—it is not constructive. As a result the photoplay suffers artistically and commercially.

It is a paradox for anyone to say that the average intelligence of the adult is not above that of a child. If that were so children would be doing the work of adults. They would govern themselves largely through their own logic rather than by the advice of adults.

Movie pictures will be better when both producers and critics come to believe that the average intelligence of the adult is an adult intelligence. Perforce it could be nothing else.

A Slow-Motion Thrill

A current slow-motion reel shows Snowy Baker, Australian horseman, being thrown from his horse in a close-up. The rearing and plunging of the horse and the unseating of the rider reduced to a speed by which every movement of muscle can be seen far more clearly than if the action had been flashed across the screen in normal action.

PHOTOPLAY POTPOURRI

"The Love Charm," by Harvey O'Neill, in "Wanda Hawley's next release," is a story by Mark Rober. "Rhythm," is to be done in celluloid by Goldwyn.

There are no specks in the picturization of "The Dust Flower." And it's by Basil King.

Dorothy Dalton will return to a Western role in the film "Therou de la Mer" by Virginia Roe.

The role of Lady Burleson in Rex Ingram's "Prisoner of Zenda" will be played by Florence Deshon.

Thomas Meighan's next picture will be "The Proxy Daddy." Several children will have leading parts. Up to date will be the hoohoo of gasoline in "The Joy Rider." Snub Pollard's next. It does the same stunts as Basstole-filmed one would do.

DR. STRICKLAND SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

Dr. F. L. Strickland of Boston university addressed the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon on the subject, "Christ's Conception of Religion."

In a forcible manner Dr. Strickland attempted to show how religion and theology were not the same thing. He declared that a man is often better than his beliefs. Dr. Strickland pointed out how the best in people has come out in spite of their strange beliefs and how every nation and people have had their religions and theologies.

A male quartet composed of Daniel Hinckley, Frank Orell, Philip F. Lord and David Allen furnished the music of the afternoon. The meeting was presided over by H. F. Howe, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., who introduced the speaker.

H. H. Hockman of the Y.M.C.A. led the singing which is a very interesting feature of these men's meetings. Edward Hurd was in charge of the ushers.

NEW PASTOR COMING TO LOWELL JAN. 1

Rev. Richard Peters of Manchester, Conn., has accepted the call to this Highland Congregational church this city, and will begin his new duties on Jan. 1. His letter of acceptance was read yesterday morning at the regular services of the church by Rev. Asher Anderson, D.D., of Randolph, who has been occupying the pulpit of the church for some time.

The call to Rev. Mr. Peters was a unanimous one.

BACHELOR PARTY FOR "JIM" O'DEA

A bachelor party was given to James L. O'Dea of the local postoffice Saturday night at the New American house. Mr. O'Dea joined the benefit class today when he married Miss Marlon C. Conney. A purse of gold was presented to Mr. O'Dea by friends of the South End club. Thomas H. Donohue made the presentation speech and in a few well-chosen words paid a glowing tribute to Mr. O'Dea, expressing the sentiments of all present. "Jimmie" responded in a fitting manner.

During the evening remarks were made by Cornelius J. O'Neill, Joseph P. Donahue, Charles A. Donahue, Bernard C. Maguire of New York, Cornelius Shea, Paul J. Roane, J. Henry Gilbride, William J. Gargan and others. A musical program was given by the Honey Boy quartet, James Roane, William Paul McCarthy, Thomas Maguire and John F. Roane, Jr. John J. Gilbride was toastmaster.

The party broke up at a late hour with all present wishing Mr. O'Dea the best of luck on his new venture.

Among those present were Daniel F. Guitur, Bernard C. Maguire, Charles A. Donahue, Esq., John Devlin, John McMahon, Edward K. Burns, Paul J. Roane, John Frawley, John Brady, Arthur T. Cull, Cornelius Shea, John Sullivan, J. H. Gilbride, Esq., Herbert T. Maguire, Thomas H. Donohue, John J. Gilbride, Frank O'Dea, John H. O'Dea, Frank Roane, William J. LOWELL HUNTER
MAKES RECORDBrings Home Three Deer
After Trek in Maine and
New Hampshire WoodsIndian Guide Was Sole Companion in Big Hunt Over
Snow-Covered Trails

The first Lowell deer hunter to return from a trek through the snow-bound forests of northern Maine and New Hampshire, reached Lowell today with three fine deer and a genuine Indian hunting guide, to boot. The guide is going to stay in town a few weeks and see what the City of Spindles really looks like.

In the meantime, out in the shed back of Erving G. Hartwell's home at 14 Royal street, are hanging the fruits of the Lowell mill man's lonely march with his guide far into the north, on one of the most successful hunting excursions he has made during the past five years.

Mr. Hartwell, widely known in Lowell mill circles and especially in the Saco-Lowell shops, where he is now traffic agent, was a happy man this morning after those deer had been properly hung up on the big hooks back of the house. They are going to make fine eating on Thanksgiving day, and if the weather stays cold, there will be deer meat to spare for Christmas, too.

Roosevelt always liked his deer meat "hung up" for a few weeks, you know. It had to "ripen" for the late president-hunter and Mr. Hartwell will explain to you just how nice deer meat tastes after it has been hanging up in some woodshed for two or three weeks.

Sydney W. Bennett, a man of about 60 winters and many busy summers, is the Indian guide who led the Lowell mill man up through the northern woods. They had one of the toughest marches of the season. There was more than three feet of snow in the Wentworth location in Maine. That is beyond what is popularly known as Wilson's Mills. The hunter and his Indian guide went overland and also by stream and lake, and they had to hike fast at times to keep from freezing.

They got two deer in Maine, all the last will allow one man to get. Then they decided to cross the New Hampshire line and hunt there. One deer was the result, and then the traffic man had to come home.

Mr. Hartwell is one of the best deer stalkers in Middlesex County, and has been carrying a gun on wild game for the past 15 years. His deer hunting has been confined to the last five years, however, but he has always had good luck. One of the deer he brought home to Lowell weighed 116 pounds, another tipped the beam at 126.

Mr. Hartwell likes to hunt in Oxford county, Maine, up around the Fort Kent region and the old Androscoggin died Saturday at her home on Shaw-river country. He saw many deer and one big moose, but of course it wouldn't do to "pink" any moose this year up in Maine.
